

Zoo Operator Fights to Save Reptile Parcel

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—A shipment of rare lizards, desert snakes and iguanas from Dutch Guiana and Africa to the Duncan reptile zoo may be destroyed by post office headquarters in Ottawa.

Zoo owner Jim Oyen has been advised by a Victoria post office official that the shipment from Holland by airmail is against regulations.

The reptiles have been sent to Ottawa with a recommendation from Victoria that they be destroyed.

WENT TO APPEAL

Mr. Oyen disclosed yesterday he was advised Thursday of the ruling and went to Victoria post office to appeal.

He said: "If they go ahead in Ottawa and kill the reptiles which are not even my property yet but still belong to the Dutch importer in Holland, the postmaster-general will have to face unpleasant consequences."

SEND EXPEDITIONS

The angry zoo operator added he had advised Ottawa officials of this, adding that, if the postmaster-general is willing to send expeditions to the jungles of South America and Africa to replace these rare specimens, not obtainable from any dealer, he can go ahead and kill the contents of the unlawful package.

CAUGHT BY SOCIETY

Mr. Oyen said the reptiles were caught by a world-wide international society, Lacerta, of which he is a member.

"After these animals travelled around the globe through several countries without any difficulty," he said, "their final delivery across the frontier of the Victoria post office failed through the officiousness of one employee."

B-47 Jet Crashes

PEASE AIR BASE, N.H. (AP)—A B-47 jet bomber crashed on takeoff from Pease Air Force Base Friday night. There were no survivors.

Wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area and the plane's burning fuel transformed the area into an inferno.

Germ Warfare Kills Scientist

LONDON (AP)—The disease that killed a British germ warfare research scientist was identified Friday night as pneumonic plague—the dread Black Death which ravaged Europe in the middle ages.

Precautions were taken to guard against its spread across England after the war office announced the result of an autopsy on 44-year-old George A. Bacon, research officer at Britain's principal germ warfare establishment.

About 60 persons known to have had recent contact with Bacon were kept under rigid surveillance and dosed with antibiotic drugs.

Bacon was reported working on pneumonic and bubonic plague at the Microbiological Research Establishment at Porton.

U.K. House Adjourns

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons adjourned Friday night for a recess until Oct. 23. There will be a three-day interruption of vacation in September for another debate on Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Hula Greets Canadians

SEATTLE (AP)—The Canadian Navy received a shaky welcome Friday at Seattle's annual week-long Seafair. The shakedown was provided by a double line of hula dancers in the rain who met HMCS Saguenay and HMCS Fraser.

Seafair princesses hurried hula-candy, that is, Seafair Queen (Miss Gold) planted hula—real ones—on Capt. Victor Brown and the ship's crew of both ships.

Prisoners May Be Force-Fed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fifty-four Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, on a hunger strike in the Fraser Valley, will be force-fed if they fail to feed themselves, prison authorities said Friday.

B.C. Penitentiary Warden T. W. Hall and assistant warden G. S. Merritt said that such action will not necessarily be taken in the immediate future, however.

"It will have to be done eventually," said Mr. Merritt, "but they can last a long time yet on water—Gandhi lasted 72 days."

11-DAY STRIKE

The Doukhobors have been on their hunger strike for 11 days.

Warden Hall said hunger strikes by the Freedomites are not new. Several times in the past they had to be force-fed. "I believe their longest hunger strike lasted 30 days," he said.

The prisoners, serving various terms for terroristic activities in the Kootenays, are checked daily by a doctor, and Mr. Hall said Friday all still are in good condition physically.

Sentence Suspended

Three teen-agers almost pulled off the robbery successfully but the plot collapsed when they tried to "fence" $8,000 raw worms valued at $120.

William McKellar and Harold Sanders, both 18, and Gary John Rowley, 17, had found the boxes of worms stacked on a golf course.

A local worm-picking magazine, whose crews had picked the slimy creatures, was able to identify them as his catch.

Magistrate Fred Bartram decided on stiff lectures for the three young worms thieves and suspended sentence for the trio.

Worms Turn On Robbers

TORONTO (CP)—Evidence in the great worm robbery was solemnly heard in suburban Willowdale court yesterday.

Three teen-agers almost pulled off the robbery successfully but the plot collapsed when they tried to "fence" $8,000 raw worms valued at $120.

Local Warship Sabotaged?

Possibility of sabotage aboard an RCN Pacific Command destroyer escort is being investigated by RCMP, the Colonist learned yesterday.

HMCS Margaree has been undergoing repairs for two weeks in HMCS Dockyard after a breakdown of one of her main engines.

The navy last night confirmed a defect had been found in a gear casing. An official statement said damage to the ship's engines was limited to one gear pinion.

There is a possibility the breakdown was not due to an equipment failure within the gear casing; therefore, the navy said, RCMP have been asked to conduct a routine investigation.

Margaree is scheduled to return to service next week after repairs to the gear train of one main engine. No further official statements are expected until the RCMP has completed its probe.

Keeping Feet Fit

Comet's Blow Red Solution

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian scientists believe they have detected the first known case of a comet from outer space striking the earth.

The Soviet claim, now widely supported but still not proved beyond doubt, was related Friday by Dominion astronomer Dr. C. S. Beals following an 18-day visit to Russia.

LONG BAFFLED

If the comet theory is correct, it will explain a natural phenomenon that has baffled the world's scientists for more than half a century.

The mystery dates back to 1908 when Tunguska, in a remote part of central Siberia, was bombarded by what until recently was considered one of the only two recorded major meteorite falls in history. The other occurred in 1947 in eastern Siberia.

Although the fall resulted in great disturbances in the air waves with the shock felt thousands of miles away, no crater was ever discovered.

INDEPENDENCE GUEST

Revenue Minister Nowlan from Nova Scotia, 64 this month, Veterans Minister Churchill from Manitoba, 64 in November, and External Affairs Minister Green from British Columbia, 67 in November, are regarded as nearing retirement.

But their elevation to the Senate—there are vacancies there for Nova Scotia and Manitoba but not for B.C.—or appointment to some post outside of Parliament would mean by-elections would have to be held.

John D Picks Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office said Friday that changes in the federal cabinet will be announced next Thursday.

The announcement will be made at noon, the office spokesman informed the parliamentary press gallery.

There was no word as to the number of appointments to be made. Five ministers were defeated in the June 18 general election.

SENDS RESIGNATION

Thursday, Solicitor-General Browne—the last of the five defeated ministers to leave office—sent in his resignation.

Earlier, Mines Minister Flynn, State Secretary Dorion, Postmaster-General William Hamilton and Works Minister Walker resigned and their portfolios were taken over by other ministers on an acting basis.

Drawing up a cabinet list is a complicated process for any prime minister. Custom, rather than law, requires every province to be represented and recognition given to language and religious groups.

MARTINEAU IN?

The consensus has been that Paul Martineau, 41, Pontiac-Témiscamingue, Deputy Speaker in the last Parliament and earlier one of Mr. Diefenbaker's parliamentary secretaries, will be taken into the cabinet.

Considered top candidate for the speakership of the New House has been Marcel Lambert, 43, Edmonton West, parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Nowlan and a bilingual Rhodes scholar.

QUEBEC MEMBERS

In addition to Mr. Martineau, Quebec members prominently mentioned as possible cabinet appointments are Theogene Ricard, 53, St. Hyacinthe-Bagot, Georges Valade, 40, Montreal St. Marie, and Roland English, 53, Gaspe.

If Mr. Diefenbaker wants at least one Quebec minister to be of English parentage, like former postmaster-general Hamilton, he has only one candidate—34-year-old Howard Graffley, Brome-Missisquoi.

SIMILAR SITUATION

A similar situation exists in the case of the Newfoundland cabinet vacancy. Only one Conservative was elected in the island province—James McGrath, 30, St. John's East, first elected to the Commons in 1957. No change in cabinet representation for the Maritime provinces and Western Canada is expected unless some of the present ministers retire.

NEAR RETIREMENT

Vancouver's quadruplets.

Mother Doing Fine

VANCOUVER (CP)—Quadruplets, two boys and two girls, were born Friday to Mrs. Alec Becker, 105-pound wife of a Vancouver lawyer.

Mrs. Becker and the quadruplets—the third set born in British Columbia medical history—were "doing fine."

WIFE SHOCKED

Mrs. Becker was still a little shocked and over-awed, but all right.

The babies, two weeks premature, weighed a total of 19 pounds 13 ounces at birth. They were delivered by caesarean section.

15 DOCTORS

Fifteen doctors attended Mrs. Becker at the birth of the quadruplets.

Odds on quadruple births are 757,000-to-1.

The Beckers have one other child, a two-year-old boy.

Red Atheism 'An Ordeal'

LONDON (Reuters)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, returned to London by air Friday night from Moscow and told reporters that his contact with "rank atheism" had proved an ordeal.

He said he had been thrilled by the visit but felt the strain of staying in a Communist society.

PROOF IN EATING

Commenting on the Soviet promise of exchanges of Russian and British churchmen, Dr. Ramsey said the "proof of the pudding would be in the eating."

Dr. Ramsey said "the government there cannot quench the religion of the Russian people, even with their anti-God propaganda."

FOLLOW CHURCH

"Religion in Russia is not found only among the old and elderly people, but among young people, too, and in fact there are whole families which follow the Russian Orthodox Church."

The archbishop was promoted by a Soviet official in Zaporozh, Russia, Friday that there would be an Anglo-Soviet exchange of churchmen.

Sits in Chair

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill got out of his hospital bed Friday, sat in a chair and met three grandchildren.

CLC Lists Automation Antidotes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress Friday unveiled a broad automation-era program.

In it, the central voice of 1,070,000 organized workers in Canada advocated that:

Governments at all levels must meet the need for grants-in-aid, loans, scholarships and finances for training workers displaced by technological change;

BASIC PROGRAMS

Sound basic education programs must be offered to help workers adapt themselves to changing skill requirements;

Aid must be provided to help workers and their families who are forced to move to new jobs because of changes in their industry.

At the same time, the CLC said its affiliated unions should press for higher wages or shorter hours—or both—as mechanization and automation increase productivity.

The congress executive council in other decisions, made public in a series of statements issued by CLC president Claude Jodoin, urged that:

1. A national contributory pension plan be introduced to supplement present old-age pensions.

2. The government make outright grants—not loans—to the unemployment insurance fund to maintain its ability to meet claims. The fund stood at $28,000,000 at June 30, with an emergency $25,000,000 loan ready to bolster it if necessary.

CBC GRANTS

3. The publicly-owned CBC be strengthened by five-year parliamentary grants—not annual grants—as at present—so that long-term planning can be made.

4. Tighter control be imposed on private radio and television stations—including rules governing Canadian content and heavy commercialism during peak hours.

WAGE INCREASE

5. Postal workers be granted the wage increase deferred by the government's austerity program and also be given the right to bargain collectively on such issues as holidays, overtime pay, and check-off of dues.

'Smallpox' Negative

NEW YORK (AP)—A suspected case of smallpox threw a scare into medical circles here Friday, before several hours of tests showed the illness to be what ails almost resembling chicken pox.

Collapse Of Bridge Kills Five

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP)—Scaffolding and steel beams gave way under tons of fresh concrete on a highway bridge construction project Friday, killing at least five men.

The bodies of the five were removed from the rubble and debris under the span.

Tons of fresh concrete had been poured and the weight apparently was too much for the shoring. Tons of steel, concrete and timber came crashing down as the shoring gave way.

French School In B.C.?

OTTAWA (CP)—The general secretary of the Association of French Catholic School Commissioners, Noel Bazinet, hinted Friday that a French-language secondary school may be built soon in British Columbia.

He also announced plans to build a French-language teachers' college in Alberta.

LACK OF CONTACTS

Returning from a 16-day tour of the two western provinces, Mr. Bazinet said in an interview he did not find any lack of goodwill among school authorities. "However," he said, "there is a lack of understanding and, at times, a lack of contacts."

MAY BE SOLVED

The secretary had been investigating the situation of French-speaking Canadians in Western Canada and is to submit a report to the association.

Deploping the lack of secondary schools for French-speaking Canadians in British Columbia, Mr. Bazinet said this problem may be solved in the near future.

Key Farm Issue

Market Blunts British Points

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—The six Common Market countries gave a cold reception Friday to Britain's counter-proposals on the key issue of Commonwealth agriculture, European officials said.

After a day of rapid developments in the negotiations for Britain's possible entry into the Common Market, a high official said Friday night that "precious little" remained of the counter-proposals.

A French delegation spokesman said the six ministers, who held a private meeting to examine the British proposals, had rejected "more than half" of them, although "there were some reservations."

Diplomatic observers said the chances for an outline agreement on Britain's entry into the market emerging by today seemed slim.

SEE NO GROUNDS

Alfred Muller Armack, West German secretary of state for economic affairs, told reporters "I see no grounds for any kind of optimism about the Commonwealth agricultural issue."

A conference source said French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville suggested that the negotiations with Britain be adjourned until the end of September. Couve de Murville consistently rejected every main point in the British counter-proposals, the source added.

U.K. Will Join Soon Says French Envoy

France's new ambassador to Canada said here yesterday he believes Britain will soon join the European Common Market.

M. Raymond Bousquet has been close to the hub of Common Market activity for some time, his last post being as ambassador to Belgium, where Market headquarters are located.

He said also he believed that, soon after Britain joins, there would be negotiations between the market and the U.S.

Canada, he said, could also obtain advantages by reciprocity agreements.

The ambassador said the most difficult period of adjustment for the Commonwealth to the shift would be between now and 1970.

But Canada could, through a trade setup similar to that with the U.S., gain concessions.

M. Bousquet said the ECM is less an economic than a political union—"Economic objectives are not enough. The best common denominator is the political factor."

Fears that Britain would lose its sovereignty were discounted by the ambassador.

The national director of the Australian League of Rights said in an interview here this week entry by Britain into the European Common Market would result in the loss of its sovereignty and the dissolution of the Commonwealth.

E. D. Butler of Melbourne said he was against the entry of the UK because the Common Market's ultimate objective is political rather than economic.

Israeli Airline Spurns Soblen

LONDON (AP)—The Israeli airline defied Friday night a British order to fly Dr. Robert Soblen to the United States and lawyers for the fugitive spy began another effort to help him escape a life sentence in an American prison.

The home office insisted that El Al Airlines must fly Soblen—but abandoned its attempts to get him out of Britain Friday night.

El Al's refusal—on Israeli government orders—spurred up vistas of still further litigation in a case that has proved one of the most complicated of its kind in legal history.

The wording of its statement indicated the home office was trying to get El Al to place Soblen on a flight by some other airline.

An El Al spokesman refused comment on this possibility.

Pan American said Thursday it had been approached about taking Soblen across the Atlantic.

Soblen's lawyers conceded they could not block the Israeli airline from transferring his ticket to another airline. But they said a British government order transferring him would amount to deportation and they would challenge such an order in courts as "an abuse of power."

Not Quite Obsolete

SHOULD THE WEST not abandon its purely defensive weapons? Are they not obsolete, ineffective, unnecessary and wastefully expensive in money and manpower?

These questions have been thoughtfully put forward, although not so baldly, by The Globe and Mail as a consequence of the recent Soviet boast of having the most modern naval force in the world with a basis of rocket-armed atomic submarines.

There has been no evidence that the West has weapons capable of hunting down and destroying nuclear submarines with certainty, the Toronto newspaper observes; nor do Western Europe and North America appear much safer from attack from the air by international missiles or even manned bombers—carrying nuclear warheads, enough almost certainly could get through to inflict unthinkable damage.

The truth is, The Globe and Mail suggests, "that for all our vast expenditures upon air, sea and land defenses, the West does not rely upon defensive weapons to protect us from attack. We rely upon our weapons of attack to deter attack by threatening to inflict equal or greater damage upon the aggressor."

"This raises the question of the advisability of spending huge sums of money and great resources of skill and manpower upon purely defensive weapons. If our true defence is deterrence, why bother with interceptor aircraft, anti-aircraft and anti-missile missiles, and warships that cannot catch nuclear submarines? Is it perhaps the case that we are wedded to military concepts out of date in this modern age?"

These are challenging questions. If this line of reasoning were accepted, the natural conclusion would be that Canada and every other Western nation without the means to deliver retaliatory nuclear blows to the enemy should proceed unilaterally to disarm.

Surely, however, there are answers. The atomic might of the two chief opposing powers is a deterrent to nuclear attack by either side. But can it be relied upon to prevent "conventional" warfare?

If non-nuclear Western nations were to rid themselves of their supposedly obsolete defences and then be subjected to conventional attack, would the United States hurry to put the nuclear torch to the enemy and thus to itself?

Out of date our defences may be, but until there is disarmament on both sides, they are still needed to guard against out-of-date attack.

This circumstance applies especially of course to the European members of the Western alliance; it is hardly to be foreseen that Canada, armed or disarmed, would be invaded short of an all-out atomic war. But Canada is committed to take its part in the defence of the alliance, not only on its own shores but wherever defence may be needed. It cannot sit on the sidelines.

The situation, however, does seem to indicate that disarmament talks so far may have been aimed at the right goals in the wrong order.

Would not the cause of peace be best served by first removing on both sides the ability to wage war with the arms of yesterday, and then abolishing the nuclear arms which are their own deterrent?

Rising Opposition

THOUGH THE Common Market countries have now tentatively agreed to admit some 30 British colonies and dependencies to associate membership should Britain decide to join the European Economic Community, they remain adamantly opposed to granting similar concessions to the independent member nations of the Commonwealth.

In fact, the existing European Common Market partners are now attempting to force Britain to reduce the time limit originally set for the full abolishment of her Imperial trade preference agreements with the other major Commonwealth countries.

When the Macmillan government first entered negotiations with the EEC, the European member governments gave their assurance that they would accept the British request for a generous transition period—up to and even beyond 10 years, if necessary, in order to allow the Commonwealth nations to seek and establish other trade outlets to replace their traditional British markets.

But as the talks progressed so the time limit was reduced until now the EEC council is talking in terms of a maximum period of five years for absolute completion of the change-over and have not hesitated to inform Britain that even this they consider far too generous.

For her part, Britain has countered with demands for an extension of the original time limit—going so far as to publicly state that she would not consider entering the EEC if it meant sacrificing the Commonwealth.

Thus does the matter remain deadlocked at the moment.

However, this developing situation is by no means the greatest threat to the Macmillan government's hopes of leading Britain into the EEC as a full member. This distinction goes to the British public generally, in whom there has now appeared a growing concern over the political implications of Great Britain becoming part of a union of European states.

Already two former prime ministers have registered their support of the mounting opposition to the move now being voiced in no uncertain terms by the majority of British people. One of them, Lord Avon, better known to the world as Sir Anthony Eden, warned the Conservative party less than a fortnight ago of the dangers of political integration with Europe as envisaged by the Treaty of Rome.

Echoing, and indeed adding to, Lord Avon's sentiments within the past 48 hours, former labor prime minister Lord Attlee publicly declared that British entry into the EEC would be "a step backward" whose political dangers were "very, very great." The Conservative party, he said, had once put the Commonwealth first, but it was now obvious the Commonwealth is second.

It will be interesting to see if Mr. Macmillan is capable of rejecting the warnings of his predecessors in office with the same urbane dexterity he has so consistently displayed in ignoring the rising tide of public opinion.

"The business situation is none of your business"

Report from Ottawa

The Search for a Good Speaker

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

ONE of the most important decisions now facing the government is the selection of the Speaker who will guide the new House of Commons in its deliberations throughout the life—likely to be short and hectic—of the 24th Parliament of Canada.

It is an important enough decision in normal circumstances. But when it is to be made at the beginning of a Parliament in which a government lacks overall control of the House of Commons and when all political parties are competing fiercely for political advantage on the next election campaign, it assumes a critical importance.

A good speaker is hard to find under any system. Only the best can surmount the built-in difficulties of the antiquated Canadian system by which Speakers serve only on a short-term basis and are required to remain politicians.

"The qualities looked for in a Speaker," says a British author who has written on the subject, "are considerable parliamentary experience, combined with impartiality, patience, dignity, and, if possible, a sense of humor. He should not have been involved in any of the more violent political controversies. It is essential that he should be personally popular with members on both sides of the House. And it is a considerable advantage to be... a lawyer."

A speaker should have a sound knowledge of parliamentary rules, forms and precedents. It is a difficult, complex field. He should also be familiar with the great traditions on which the rules and forms are based.

This outline of the qualifications, by no means all-inclusive, explains why the government search among its 116 MPs is a serious one indeed and is not yet at an end.

The man who would probably come closest to filling the bill is the Hon. Roland Michener, Speaker in the last Parliament.

But Mr. Michener, who might well have been accepted by all political parties as the first "permanent" Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, had the government launched a reform project of this kind ardently and earnestly during the 1958-62 period, suffered personal defeat in the last election and is now out of reach.

Barring drastic changes in the Canadian parliamentary tradition, the speakership candidate for whom Prime Minister Diefenbaker is now looking will be a Conservative MP of French origin (the speakership alternates who is an experienced parliamentarian but no fierce partisan and who practices law).

Mr. Diefenbaker's search is the more difficult because only 14 Quebec Conservatives held their seats in the last election and few of these seem to have most of the qualifications.

A possible choice is Mr. Paul Martineau, 41-year-old former Crown counsel of Quebec's Pontiac district. He served, and served fairly well, as deputy Speaker in the last Parliament. With his experience, he has tact and flexibility. Whether he would be strong enough to keep the Commons from spinning into orbit should the Tories regain the reins on the ramparts (as Co-Leader Paul Comte has promised that they will) is a debatable point. The problem is one which will confront any appointee.

Another possibility, according to grapevine reports, is Mr. Theobald Richard (PC—St. Hyacinthe-Cabot) who has been parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

A third possible choice is Mr. Roland English (PC—Gaspé). But one of the hard facts of life confronting Mr. Diefenbaker is that three of his Quebec cabinet ministers (two of them representing the French-speaking majority) must be replaced. Some of the possible candidates for the speakership will also be in demand for cabinet posts in the ministerial reorganization which Mr. Diefenbaker cannot delay for long.

The prime minister, however, still has another card or two up his sleeve.

While Quebec talent is in short supply for the posts which will set the pattern of the situation is far otherwise in Alberta.

If he were from one of the larger provinces, Mr. Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton) would long since have been in line for promotion to the cabinet. Alberta, however, is usually allotted but one cabinet representative. At the moment and for the foreseeable future, the experienced and competent Defence Minister D. S. Harkness is likely to be that representative. This line of promotion is blocked.

Fortunately for Mr. Lambert, however, he is of French origin, is bilingual and has had experience over the affairs of the Commons. He is eligible and available.

Some of the possible Quebec appointees might fit the Speaker's chair better. And Mr. Lambert, for that matter, might be happier as a cabinet minister than a Speaker. He has shown himself to be blunt, impatient, rigorous and decisive. There has been little evidence of the flexibility that Mr. Martineau has in abundance.

From his past record, he would be a strong Speaker whose sense of order and discipline might play into Opposition hands. He may, of course, turn out to be a master of Machiavellian subtleties who kept his statecraft under wraps at a time when such qualities were in little demand. If that is, Mr. Lambert should prove to be the prime minister's final choice for an exacting post in difficult circumstances.

Central African Federation

Grave and Complex Problem

By RICHARD FURBER from London

THE Central African Federation is approaching a stage of crisis. Fundamental decisions must soon be taken which will set the pattern of bitterness or hope between white and black people in all parts of Africa not yet under outright black rule.

In charge of the Central Africa office in London is Mr. R. A. Butler. He has been strengthened in his new position as heir-apparent to the prime minister, and has been freed from onerous Home Office duties to devote more time to what he calls the gravest problem to face his own career as well as the gravest and most complex problem to face black Africa.

The problem is this: Southern Rhodesia is a self-governing colony run by a large number of settled whites whose numbers are small compared to the number of blacks. It is linked dominantly in nine-year-old federation with the colonies of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, where the number of whites is infinitesimal. Northern Rhodesia's mines finance the federation. Nyasaland's great population density is a drain. The blacks want to rule, especially in the two colonies where the whites are least entrenched. Can the transition be made without violence?

A team of high-level advisers has been sent to the scene by Mr. Butler, who is himself familiar with the area. They are to explore in detail the problems involved in succession from the federation of Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia.

The ruling Malawi Congress party of Dr. Hastings Banda in Nyasaland is determined that federation must die, to avoid white overlordship in Nyasaland. But Britain is spending more than $7,000,000 this year alone to finance this economically unviable state. Mr. Butler knows that this must continue for some years, and hopes that the British taxpayer will tolerate footing the bill.

He hopes for an eventual "alternative arrangement" of association between Nyasaland and the federation that will improve Nyasaland's economic plight without subject-

Lessons from Century 21

By MARQUE CHILDS

AMONG the 4,753,817 people who visited the Seattle Century 21 Exposition in the first half of its life were delegations from a half dozen cities planning future world's fairs. They hope to learn what to do and what not to do in the light of Seattle's success.

New York has scarcely a year and a half to go before opening a fair that is to cover a space nearly 10 times the 74 acres of the Seattle exposition. One criticism here has been the crowding of the site, the lack of spacious vistas that characterized the Brussels fair of four years ago covering more than 500 acres.

Atlanta is planning a fair in 1967, and the city hopes to obtain the seal of approval of the Bureau of International Expositions. Seattle got that seal while New York was denied it because its exposition was to come too soon after Century 21.

Philadelphia has sent emissaries here in contemplation of an exposition in 1976 commemorating the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. And Chicago, whose Century of Progress in 1933-34 was the last fair to make money, is thinking of another exposition.

One lesson from Seattle may be the economy of size. Another equally important is the fact that the core of the exposition was built as a permanent cultural and sports centre for the city, including an art gallery, opera and concert halls and sports stadium. City and state together put up nearly $26,000,000. Congress appropriated $9,000,000 for the science pavilion, and the National Aeronautics and Space Agency came through with another million for a special space exhibit. The capsule in which John Glenn made his three orbits of the earth will shortly be flown here and included in the display.

It is a measure of the up-and-coming spirit of this region that the intention is to maintain the science pavilion after the fair closes as what Ewen C. Dingwall, general manager of the exposition, calls a "kind of West Coast Smithsonian Institution." The idea is to join with the University of Washington and other centres to foster research that will, in turn, mean the development of industries in new fields such as electronics and space. Foreign governments, private exhibitors and others put in about $30,000,000. Thus of the $100,000,000 which the exposition cost, more than two-thirds was paid for from sources outside of the book-keeping of profit and loss.

Still another element in the Seattle success is regional pride. At least 80 per cent of the visitors have come from the 13 Western states, the lion's share from California. This is a new empire on the West Coast that holds the conviction that it will soon outstrip the East.

While the theme of the space age is incidental and even irrelevant to much of what goes on in this exposition's teeming 74 acres, a high and mighty theme is essential to any self-respecting and successful world's fair. It is a cloak of good intent covering everything from the strippers to the Uday Shankar dancers from India. The space needs, which will be a permanent feature of the Seattle skyline, comparable to the Eiffel Tower in Paris that came out of another fair, might just as well have been called by any other name.

An essential ingredient in the recipe for an exposition that attracts the customers is an art exhibit. Seattle scores conspicuously in this department. The show is divided into three sections. Masterpieces of Art, Art after 1950 and Northwest Coast Indian Art, with a small corollary exhibit of Oriental art. Galleries all over the world have lent art objects.

The Pacific Northwest exhibit is unique. The sculptured masks and the ceremonial figures compare favorably with the best of the African sculpture that had such a vogue. Some of the objects lent by museums in London and Berlin were acquired in the middle of the 18th Century when Captain Cook and his expedition came to these shores. For the first time in more than 150 years they have been returned to their place of origin, although in a setting somewhat changed in the intervening century and a half.

Check by jowl with the Northwest Indian art is the wildly nonrepresentational contemporary art.

But when all is said and done, painstaking, persistent promotion had a lot to do with Seattle's success. As early as last Christmas a drive was put on to sell regular $2 admission tickets in advance at a discount price of $1.60. Advance tickets to amusement rides and other fair attractions were also sold. The gross from this advance was more than $7,000,000, much higher than the comparable figure from any previous fair.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

THE wharf at the summer resort to which I am added has a daily steamer call with the mail and with provisions ordered from town. At boat time it becomes very crowded with the outboards, launches, skiffs and cruizers of the cottagers. And to cap the confusion, a few of the younger set who have been out sailing in their dinghies come in and do some fancy boat handling as they manoeuvre their craft into the wharf, with much lowering of sail and wagging of rudder.

I offered the suggestion to a group of elders on the wharf that in view of the mounting congestion, it might be a useful idea, in the interests of safety and good order, to forbid the landing of sailing craft at the summer wharf.

"Certainly not," said a lawyer among the group. "Confusion is the very essence of the livelihood of all us professional men. What would we lawyers do if there were not confusion in the world? What would doctors, dentists, nurses, engineers, experts of every kind do, if the world were properly ordered? What, above all, would you newspaper men do, without confusion all around you on which to report and comment? No, not let confusion reign!"

So I withdrew the suggestion.

And regional pride has been the spur. When visitors write glowing letters to the papers praising the fair and the splendours of the Northwest countryside, the sense of reward for the citizen is a great as his satisfaction in knowing that the project is paying off in dollars and cents.

Fostering Peace

Summer Village

By ALAN MORAY WILLIAMS from Copenhagen

IN a beautiful park 20 miles from Copenhagen, 44 children from 11 different countries have been spending a month together in the land of Hans Christian Andersen as guests of the Danish government.

The children— from Denmark, Finland, Ghana, Greenland, Guatemala, Holland, Japan, Norway, Poland, Sweden and the United States— have been taking part in a Children's International Summer Village— one of seven held this year in various countries. The CIVS movement was founded by an American children's psychologist, Dr. Doris Twitchell, in 1951. Today it links children and educationalists in 40 different countries. Its idea is "to bring together in summer camps children from all countries and further in them the growth of an attitude favorable to peace."

While all international camps can serve this purpose, it is felt that the best and most lasting results follow if the children who go there are not too marked already by national prejudices. If children are given a chance, the argument runs, to adopt an early age a positive attitude to children in other lands, there is reason to hope that they will grow up into adults prepared to work actively for tolerance and peace.

The villages are organized in each country by teachers and others under the auspices of an international board elected every three years. Their financing is borne by private collections or the state, or both.

A typical village numbers 40 to 50 children of 11 years, with four children (two boys and two girls) from each country represented. The small numbers are deliberate. Were the national delegations bigger, the children might lack the impulse to associate with the rest. Each group is accompanied by an adult leader— usually a teacher aged 20 to 30—who acts as a "parent" and interpreter for the children. English and the language of the host country are the official tongues spoken, usually; but the children soon pick up a lingua franca of their own.

The children selected are expected to be physically and mentally healthy, bright and friendly, and able to share ideas. The age-group chosen is also deliberate.

At 11, it is felt, the children are old enough to be away from home and to understand the purpose of being brought together, yet young enough to accept each other without prejudice. "Physiologically and emotionally they are more stable than teenagers, and usually at their age they are open-hearted and eager to make contacts."

During the four weeks a daily program of games, sports, outings, manual creative work, drama, singing and so forth is arranged for them.

How does the scheme work out in practice? Recently I saw the children arrive at their camp in Hillerød, many, like those from Guatemala and Ghana, in gay national costumes. On the first evening they settled down happily, exchanging small souvenirs like badges and national flags and communicating by gestures and signs where language failed.

Each evening they sing their national songs "and present their countries' customs, dances and plays, and each group, in the course of the month, produces a mimeographed newspaper in one of the camp's official languages. In this, and other ways, nationality is not ignored, yet the children are taught social fellowship on an international basis.

Thalidomide Halted By Breaking Law

OTTAWA (CP) — The head of the federal Food and Drug Directorate stepped outside the law last spring to help drug manufacturers keep supplies of the baby-deforming drug Thalidomide out of the hands of the public.

Dr. C. A. Morrell said Friday in an interview that at the request of one manufacturer of the sedative drug he wrote a letter threatening prosecutions if thalidomide supplies were not returned.

"I don't know under what section of the act prosecutions could have been made."

"I heard from one company by phone that they were having difficulty getting back all the stocks that were out, that some to whom it was supplied wanted to keep them. They asked for help."

"That day I wrote the two manufacturing companies advising them that the acceptance of thalidomide had been withdrawn, that its sale could no longer be allowed and that, if it was found sales were being made, stocks would be subject to seizure and prosecutions would follow.

"I understand the letter was used to show druggists to convince them to return stocks."

Forest Fire Kills Four

MARIPOSA, Calif. (AP) — Four men perished and two were injured critically when flames trapped a pumper crew battling a forest fire eight miles northeast of here, the U.S. Forest Service said.

Flames from the blaze, contained Friday after charring some 280 acres, suddenly leaped up a canyon Thursday and trapped the men who were attempting to set a backfire and save two buildings.

$380,000 Involved

Trailer Sale B.C. Fraud?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men and three companies were charged Friday with conspiring to defraud finance companies out of $380,000 through the sale of trailers.

An indictment containing 45 counts was filed against Hilgrit Robert Cripps and Eugene Dussault of Burnaby and Pacific Coast Trailers Ltd., Interior Mobile Homes Ltd., and Mutual Sand and Gravel Ltd.

Forty trailers were involved in the indictment. Police alleged 115 trailers were financed but either were non-existent or never registered in B.C.

Charges were pending against two other men, police said.

$2,000,000 Cannery Coming Back

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Packers Ltd. definitely will rebuild its salmon cannery at Namu, destroyed in a $2,000,000 fire Jan. 11, a company official said Friday.

Engineering and design studies have begun and a modern plant will be ready for next year's season at the site midway between Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

The Namu cannery would have processed a record pink salmon catch this summer.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A three-man U.S. labor department advisory board called Friday for a series of high-level international conferences to end a "war of attrition" between the Canadian Maritime Union and a subsidiary of the U.S. Seafarers International Union.

The battle between the CMU and the SIU of Canada—both of which represent unlicensed seamen on Great Lakes ships—has resulted in the picketing of Canadian ships in U.S. ports, violence on both sides of the border and official protests from the Canadian government.

The advisory board recommended a series of conferences conducted by U.S. Labor Secretary Goldberg and Canadian Labor Minister Starr to explore all possible means of settlement.

Monkeys Survive Space Trip

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. (AP) — Two monkeys and four hamsters lived through a 51-hour trip over Canada into altitudes that contain 50 per cent of the radiation man will encounter when he travels into deep space.

Scientists said the monkeys are in good condition. The hamsters, however, died en route from the recovery area near Prince Albert, Sask., to an airfield near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan province border.

Resignation of Regier 'Sure' in Two Weeks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Erhart Regier said Friday night he has answered objections raised by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay and expects that two weeks from Friday his resignation as a member of parliament will be effective.

Mr. Regier is resigning his Burnaby-Coquitlam seat in the Commons to make way for the election of New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas who was defeated in the June federal elections.

Mr. Regier said in an interview his resignation was returned by Mr. Castonguay with a letter stating he might want to reconsider it.

Mr. Regier said his agent filed his election expenses with the returning officer in his constituency and if there are no further objections raised within two weeks his resignation will be effective.

He said he is awaiting advice from his representatives in Ottawa whether to send back the resignation returned by Mr. Castonguay or send a new one. However, that decision would have no effect on the effective date of his resignation.

U.S. Probes Six Deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration said Friday it is investigating the birth control pill enovid to see if it may have been involved in the deaths of six women.

The FDA said there had been 28 cases in which women who had taken the pill developed a blood clot. Six died.

Risk Is Small Say Makers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A woman taking oral contraceptives involves no more risk of blood clotting—and possibly less—than a woman in normal pregnancy, a spokesman for the manufacturers of birth control pill enovid said Friday.

The spokesman said a "supercharged atmosphere over thalidomide" was responsible for a government investigation of enovid.

No Troubles In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — An oral contraceptive that may have led to blood disorders among women in Britain has been used widely for about a year in Vancouver without reports of this effect, medical authorities said Friday.

Fears for Future Voiced By Doctor-Backed Plans

BANFF (CP) — A spokesman for the Western Conference of Prepaid Medical Plans said Friday the organization is concerned about the future of doctor-sponsored medical insurance schemes.

George La Fray, chairman of the conference's permanent committee, said experts are paying close attention to new government medical plans such as the one in Saskatchewan and a proposal in the U.S. for hospital care for senior citizens.

Plans have been made for a joint U.S.-Canada conference in Seattle Oct. 17-20. More than 300 delegates representing 42 medical service plans are expected to attend.

Mr. La Fray said conference members in the U.S. do not have to contend with government-operated plans, but are concerned about recent trends because "historically, hospital coverage has proved to be the first step toward government medical plans."

Pioneer Meets Pioneer

CALGARY (CP) — Medical pioneers shook hands here Friday after Dr. Robert Malt, a Boston surgeon who reunited a boy's arm, met Calgary doctors who performed a similar operation.

Dr. Malt is here to compare notes with the Calgary doctors who saved 17-year-old Hazel Donlin's left arm after an accident on the midway of the Calgary Stampede.

Dr. Malt, senior resident surgeon at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, headed a team of surgeons who saved the right arm of 12-year-old Everett Knowles, Jr., which was severed in a railway accident.

Dr. Malt was brought here by anonymous businessmen who raised the $1,000 to finance his trip.

Bank Holdup Suspect Had $3,000 in Sock

CALGARY (CP) — City police said Friday they have arrested a 41-year-old Vancouver man, Jean Paul Jacques, in connection with a $17,000 bank holdup.

Police said they found a total of $11,678 in the man's possession, $3,000 of which was in a sock he was wearing.

He will be questioned about the robbery of a bank in downtown Vancouver during which a 19-year-old teller was shot in the hand.

Vancouver police learned Wednesday a red and white convertible had been purchased for $4,300 cash and they decided to question the owner. However, they found he left the city shortly after buying the car.

INCREASED EARNINGS

British Columbia Forest Products increased its net profit in the first half of 1962 to $2,528,961 (73 cents a share) from $1,763,438 (51 cents) in the corresponding period of 1961.

Sales of $26,645,327 were up from $25,038,466 a year ago.

T. N. Beaupre, president, said two-thirds of the increase in dollar sales was due to the higher value of the U.S. dollar.

Pulp and plywood sales were up from a year ago, but lumber volume dipped three per cent.

Rain Cools Danger In Most Forests

Rain which fell Thursday and yesterday has reduced the fire hazard in most B.C. forests, a forest service spokesman said yesterday.

Only six fires still were burning on Vancouver Island yesterday — at Port Hardy, Campbell River, three at Langford and Lake Cowichan — and they were under control.

Fire hazard last week was rated "extreme" but since the rains, the hazard has dropped to "moderate."

Rainy weather is expected to continue over the weekend but drier weather is forecast for next week.

Garden Notes

Don't Ever Give Up

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Some years ago, I was anxious to cover the east wall of our home with a wisteria. I bought a good plant from a reliable nurseryman in the spring, prepared a bed of rich and well-drained soil along the wall, knocked the plant out of its pot and set it out, anticipating keenly the picture it would make.

The plant simply sat there doing nothing at all throughout the whole summer and well into the fall. Not a single leaf appeared, and its stems looked more like strands of string than the branches of a living plant. By fall I had given up hope and, convinced that the thing was dead, I dug it up and threw it on the compost heap.

A few days after this, a visiting friend saw the discarded plant on the rubbish heap and asked if he could have it. I told him he was welcome to it but that it was quite useless, as it had been in this apparently lifeless condition all summer. The stubborn fellow took it away nevertheless and planted it in his garden. The following spring it started into vigorous growth. It has thrived amazingly ever since—I turn green with envy every time I see my discarded wisteria blooming its head off on my friend's trellis.

I have learned since that it is quite a common thing for a newly transplanted wisteria to remain dormant for eight, nine or even 12 months before leafing out and starting into growth. This experience taught me never to discard a plant for dead without scraping a little of the bark off the stem to see if there is any green in the inner bark or whether the wood is really brown and dead.

Mention of climbers reminds me of another mistake I made, this time with a clematis. I wanted this one to adorn a broad and fairly high lath trellis screen.

The plant, bought in a pot, was set in the ground up close to the screen. The branches were unravelled from the supporting cane and tied vertically to the lattice-work, as I wanted to get all the height I could from the very start.

In due time the new growth started, but it was all from the extreme tips of every shoot. Very soon the young growth had reached the top of the screen and, from the second year on, I had lovely thick growth along the upper portion of the screen but nothing at all down below except bare brown stems.

Since that time, whenever I have planted a clematis, I have always set the roots in the ground well out from the wall or trellis, about a foot away. I make a shallow trench about three inches deep running parallel with the wall, and a couple of the stems are pegged down in this trench and covered with sandy soil. Remaining shoots are tied to the wall in a low arch less than a foot from the ground.

Treated in this way, the buried stems sprout plenty of new growth from soil level and young growth starts from every leaf joint, and it is simply a matter of training these in such a manner as to furnish the whole wall.

Any branch of any plant will always flower and bear fruit much more freely when it is growing horizontally or arching than when it is pushing straight up. Fruit growers will often bring a reluctant tree into heavy bearing by pulling the branch tips down with wires or strings tied to stakes.

Anthony Cipriano: The Art of Business

Victims of the Consumers

(While John Crosby is on vacation, his column is being written by guest. Today's contributor is Anthony Cipriano, sculptor.)

From prehistoric times the artist had functioned as an important member of advancing societies. In the beginning, when fear of the unknown dominated, the artist functioned as a magic image-maker and priest. From then on, through the early civilizations to the Renaissance, artists were patronized by institutions, religious and secular. In the Renaissance, the artist was commissioned to great decorative tasks earning large sums of money and spending many years on one project. From the 1500s on, due to lack of patronage, the role of the artist in society declined. Finally, in mid-nineteenth century France, artists not accepted by the government salons began to exhibit independently.

Here we have the advent of the in-between man, the dealer, and the beginning of commercialism in art. The dealer is a business man and must create a demand for his product. The more artists, the more art, the more money. There cannot be that many good artists, but there can be many mediocre ones. Therefore, the dealer began to sell eccentricity rather than true originality.

Propaganda directed toward the public confused and instilled an intellectual inferiority complex in the public. Now the dealers are exhibiting the works of "revolutionary" artists in independent galleries whose clientele is a select group of wealthy people who supposedly represent the rebellious cultural aspirations of society. They are the consumers.

The artist today is the victim of the business man who cares about art only to the extent of making money on it. The more ambitious and productive young artists are frightened into not exhibiting or selling their works unless they are discovered by the more politically powerful galleries who can command high prices for the work.

Until the artist's "moment" arrives, he prefers to live in an ivory loft existence, detached from and critical of his society, except for particular public bars. Until his "break," he prefers to take menial jobs to earn money.

Commercialism in the arts spreads to education, and the artists who are successful through galleries have become teachers and teach a popular, amorphous style of the day. The student becomes a victim of the primitivism founded on the dazzling obscurity of art talk, the juggling of catch words, and the dehydrated "aesthetic" concepts.

Artists and art students have reverted to a form of regressive infantilism, so the people are not able to discern the difference between man-made arts and the art of a chimpanzee.

Today, if the artist is to regain his independence, his dignity, and to acquire again an important function in society, he must re-educate himself—he must adapt his art to decoration, to architecture. He must again learn to design consciously, to give form to an idea and do away with the sterilizing, demoralizing demands of the galleries.

Crump Precedent

Eight May Appeal

Murderers' Hopes Soar

By SHELLEY SINGER

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. Otto Kerner, who broke precedent by commuting slayer Paul Crump's death sentence on the sole ground of rehabilitation, faces a deluge of similar appeals from other condemned killers.

The first such may arrive in a matter of days from James Dukes, who is scheduled to die Aug. 24 for the 1956 killing of a detective.

An attorney for Dukes, 26-year-old Negro, said yesterday he will ask Kerner for a 60-day reprieve for his client and eventual sentence commutation.

Seven other men also are under death sentence here. All found hope of escaping the electric chair in Kerner's decision to reduce Crump's sentence to 199 years "without parole" in the killing of an unarmed plant guard during a $20,000 robbery.

Jason Bellows, Dukes' Attorney, said he will ask for the 60 days to provide time for study of a Kerner ruling.

"I think the precedent has been set that rehabilitation is ground for clemency. Dukes' case is not quite so dramatic as Crump's, but he's even more rehabilitated. He didn't have as far to go as Crump," Bellows said.

Another portion of the Kerner decision raised another question in Illinois—his phrase "without parole."

Illinois law provides that anyone held in prison for 20 years is eligible for consideration for parole. Law Prof. Charles Bowman of the University of Illinois and Jerome Finkle, head of the state's legislative reference bureau, said there was "no question" future governors might free Crump.

Kerner, a former judge and longtime foe of capital punishment, admitted the "without parole" ruling was clouded, but insisted: "I do not believe Crump will be eligible for parole."

He believes the constitutional right of executive clemency and the conditions attached thereto supersede the legislative act establishing eligibility for parole.

Kerner also announced he will continue his fight for abolition of the death penalty in Illinois.

The governor's decision to grant mercy to Crump drew criticism from Judge Richard Austin, who helped prosecute Crump nine years ago.

"The governor has repealed the death penalty in Illinois without the sanction of the legislature and without the approval of the people," he said.

Eyes and Ears for Blind and Deaf

Courageous Boy Loses Mother

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Little Clarence Hathaway, who has been the eyes and ears all of his life for his blind and deaf parents, lost his mother last night.

When Clarence was born seven years ago, an effort was made to take him from his parents. It was said he could not lead a normal life with parents who were blind and deaf and they could not care for him.

The courts ruled otherwise. Since then, Clarence captured the attention of the continent as he carried responsibilities far beyond his years.

At night, he would come home from school and tell his parents what he had seen. The family had worked out special hand codes which his parents could feel for use in sharing his experience and for giving instructions on errands he should run.

Last night Mrs. Georgia Hathaway died in a hospital where she had been under treatment for a rheumatic heart for 10 days.

Now the question of whether the boy can remain with his father is expected to come up. Harold Hathaway 60, has not been in the best of health.

Get Used to Aromatic Goat Latest Khrushchev Homily

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev told the peasants of his home village the West is a smelly goat with whom Russia has to live, Pravda disclosed Friday.

He made the remark at Kalinovka, a village about 370 miles south of Moscow.

The Soviet premier told villagers it is necessary that Soviet economy, technique and culture must rise to new heights so "our enemy will bite his tongue."

"What the devil do we need war for? It is better to live with the goat and bear its unpleasant smell. But as the saying goes, 'Don't let it into the kitchen garden.'"

Union Loses, 2-0

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — The results of the collective bargaining election at the Kroger warehouse cafeteria came as no surprise to Mrs. Dorothy Knox and Mrs. Eva Krinn.

The National Labor Relations Board ordered the election at the request of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union.

The NLRB sent agent Phil Card from Chicago to supervise the balloting.

When it was completed, Card opened the ballot box and counted the votes. The union lost, 2-0.

"We could have told you that," Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Krinn said.

They were the only eligible voters.

"Well, it was a nice drive from Chicago," Card said.

Curse or Murder?

Scientist's Strangulation Baffles Police

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police admitted Friday they were baffled by the strangulation death of a man who claimed to be a widely-travelled archeologist on a lecture series in the United States and Mexico.

The body of Dr. Carelton Hollenbeck, in his 60s, was discovered in a downtown hotel room Thursday.

Coroner Henry Turkely said Hollenbeck had been strangled.

Police said Hollenbeck's wallet and a diamond ring valued at $600 were missing.

Anne Ost, an elderly retired nurse from San Diego interviewed here, said Hollenbeck was mainly known for his work in the 1922 discovery of the tomb of King Tut.

She said Hollenbeck claimed he escaped the so-called curse of King Tut's tomb — death said to befall archeologists who unearthed the tomb — through his understanding of ancient wisdom.

Hollenbeck's name does not appear among those who took part in British Lord Carnarvon's famous King Tut expedition, according to the San Francisco Chronicle.

'Tropic of Cancer'

Court Jury Blushes Hearing Novel Read

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Jurors blushed and teenagers were ousted from the courtroom Thursday when Assistant District Attorney Richard Sardino began reading The Tropic of Cancer.

The book is being entered as evidence in the trial of three Syracuse bookstore personnel charged with selling "obscene literature." Their shop was raided in March, and copies of the Henry Miller novel were confiscated by police.

Sardino is scheduled to read the entire novel out loud to the jury before presenting the rest of the prosecution's case.

The action is being taken to prevent the charge from being thrown out on the ground the jury had not read the book — the reason a past obscenity case was dismissed.

The three men and three women on the jury blushed noticeably during several of the passages read by the impassive Sardino.

Bennett Speech Certain

Premier Bennett says he plans to speak at a $10-a-plate dinner in Vancouver today to mark the B.C. Social Credit Government's 10th anniversary.

Earlier party officials said they doubted whether Mr. Bennett would be able to attend because of the opening of the Canadian premiers' conference in Victoria.

Open Tennis Not Answer Says Visiting Official

By JIM TAYLOR

"Wimbledon has a spirit that is beyond professionalism. Open tennis has no place there, and I don't believe it ever will have a place."

This was William H. Mellor, tennis official, giving his answer to the most burning question in tennis today, and backing it with impressive argument.

Bill Mellor is 73, and the sun on a thousand tennis courts has turned his face berry-brown under a shock of white hair. A vice-president of The Lawn Tennis Association, ruling body of British tennis, he is visiting relatives here and trying to work in a set or so of the game he still plays once or twice a week.

Naturally, the question of open tennis tournaments and the "shamateurism" of the game today had to come up. It has split the tennis world for several years, and Mellor has been in a position to hear both sides.

He lost no time in allying himself with the amateurs.

"Shamateurism?" He winced at the word. "Certainly the top amateur players are getting paid. But open tournaments are not the answer, and never will be."

"Less than one per cent of tennis players today are affected or take part in these under-the-table dealings. Why alter the game to stop that one per cent? No athlete in modern times can afford to play extensively without some financial backing, but it should not be difficult to find a more rigid method of control."

Aside from that, he added, there were simply too many arguments against changing a sport that is growing faster than ever before when there is no real reason to change it. Inevitably, that brought up Jack Kramer and "Kramer's Circus," as the British call his professional tour. For years Kramer has been skimming the cream off amateur tennis, but Mellor indicated those days might be over.

WILLIAM H. MELLOR

"The main reason for all the lobbying for open tournaments was the insistence of the owners of Wimbledon, who were nervous about the number of top amateurs Kramer was getting," he said. "But attendance at Wimbledon has increased year after year, and Kramer has admitted that his professional tour has lost $25,000 in each of the last two years. How long can he do that?"

All profits from Wimbledon go to the Lawn Tennis Association for the promotion of the game, and it's the main source of income," he said. "Why turn it over to the pros?"

Mellor also voiced the opinion that open tournaments might not catch on as well as some people might expect.

"Good as professional tennis might be, it is non-passion tennis. Crowds at Wimbledon are always pulling for the underdog, and they go to see two men rallying all their resources for one try for a championship. Where's the thrill if you watch professionals, and know that they'll be playing each other again tomorrow somewhere else?"

"There is no violent urge among spectators to see professionals at Wimbledon," he said. "The Lawn Tennis Association has come out in favor of open tennis, but it has never been put to a vote of the country. Every club would have a vote, and opinion there is much more divided than on the Lawn Tennis Association governing body."

Nothing can be done now until 1964, he said, and even then a two-thirds majority among world tennis officials would be needed to bring in the open tournaments.

"I doubt very much if they could get it," he said, and left no doubt that he was glad.

"Certainly something has to be done about your so-called shamateurism," he said. "But the dangers of open tennis to me are much worse than pseudo-amateurism, which can be dealt with in other ways."

TACKLE BOX

IT WORKS: Next to Japanese weed and high winds nothing bothers the salmon fisherman more than dogfish, and they really have been around East coast waters in discouraging numbers this year. How to escape the tedium of forever having to stop fishing and cut them off one's tackle, if one is lucky enough not to lose his lure, is a never-ending challenge.

About the only answer is to troll fast. This doesn't always keep the dogfish off and with some lures it definitely cuts down the chances of hooking a salmon. But speed is the only answer.

It's a problem which interested Rhys Davis no end inasmuch as his Taser lures are bait harnesses and dogfish have an unerring instinct for bait in any form.

The result was what Rhys called his Super Taser, which was specially designed for fast trolling. It comes about as close to solving the dogfish problem as any lure available, and it has the added advantage of being so simple to use that even a tyro salmon fisherman should have no trouble making it work.

Last month during a week's holiday at Saratoga Beach in which considerable fishing was done between Bates Beach and Cape Mudge we used the Super Taser exclusively—without flasher. The result was 21 salmon and only four dogfish during a period in which most boats were taking four to 20 dogfish a trip. And three of the four dogfish we caught were the result of carelessness—making too sharp a turn—or slowing down slightly near a kelp bed in the hopes of enticing a large spring salmon.

Getting the Super Taser to work presents no problem. We used a 5/0 Mustad Viking hook instead of a treble hook. Inserted the herring strip and took off at what can be best described as "medium bucktail speed." It's quite fast, and other anglers in the vicinity must have thought we were fishing with a bucktail fly, but the Super Taser fishes best at a good speed so don't be leary of speeding up. And when checking the action, check it right alongside the boat. If you let out some line before checking action, the Super Taser will give the impression that it isn't that tight tail action necessary when fishing herring strip.

BE "WRONG" FAST: There is, of course, a certain speed at which lures work best but if one has to be wrong, be wrong on the fast side. There is a better chance of catching salmon, particularly coho, going a bit faster than a bit slower. This may not be always correct, as salmon will on occasion go for a slow lure, but it is right more often than wrong. The exception is tyros fishing when it is almost always necessary to troll a lure slowly, but tyro salmon are usually found in areas where there is little or no problem with dogfish.

Keeping in mind that fast trolling is usually better than slow, it behooves an angler to use lures which lend themselves to a little extra boat speed. Two that can be recommended in addition to the Super Taser are the Tom Mack spoon and the Luckie Louie plug. It is the belief here that the big reason these lures have proven so lastingly popular is that they "fish" well at so many speeds, and are ideal for the beginner or less experienced fisherman.

WHY CASH?: "Most fishing tournaments chill our blood and spoil our supper, especially when the fish are not released and money prizes are offered."

The quote is from last week's issue of Sports Illustrated and I can agree with only part of it.

Although it is admitted that many arguments can be assembled against fishing tournaments or derbies, I can see no great harm in them if they are properly conducted, don't happen too often and are not used for fund-raising which can not be strictly described as charitable.

On the other hand, there is really no defensible stand when cash prizes are offered, particularly by angling organizations.

Angling organizations, one likes to believe, are formed for the purpose of protecting the interests of sports fishermen and they should be the last to commercialize this type of fishing. Offering cash prizes is the lazy way of conducting what should be a friendly competition, much easier than supplying a more suitable prize, and the cash hardly makes it friendly competition.

True enough, some sports fishermen prefer to fish for cash, and it may well be that they have been able to influence or control derby committees into offering cash. But it's something no angling group should allow to take place. It is difficult to make a case for conservation and the damage done to the salmon population by commercial fishermen when sports-fishing groups offer cash prizes for fishing. And it makes a farce of the claim that these groups represent thousands of anglers when club membership is necessary to take part in derbies.

Jay Scores Six Goals In Overtime Victory

VANCOUVER — Ron Jay scored six goals here last night as Victoria Shamrocks went into overtime for a 13-10 victory over Burnaby Norburns to snap a seven-game losing streak and gain a little ground in their struggle to hold third place in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Norburns, who started Shamrocks off on their skid with an 8-7 victory in Victoria, held the Rocks to an 8-8 draw and came within a few seconds of winning it in regulation time.

But Whitey Severson, playing in a record-tying 49th league game, celebrated with a goal just before the whistle to force the overtime. Shamrocks, who have been averaging just over five goals per game lately, scored that many in the overtime to get the im-

Bedard Plays Californian

QUEBEC (CP)—Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., Friday night ousted Harry Fauguer of Toronto in straight sets to become the sole Canadian still in the running for the men's singles at the Canadian open tennis championships.

The top-seeded Canadian took the quarter-final match 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., second seeded foreigner, won his quarter-final match against Rod Mandelstam of Johannesburg, South Africa, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

He now meets Bedard.

In the women's singles, an all-Toronto final is assured as the result of Friday's semi-finals.

Ann Barclay defeated Shirley Hart of Montreal 6-3, 6-1, and Louise Brown won 7-6, 6-2, 6-1 over Mary Habicht of Santos, Brazil.

Seattle Accepted By Coast League

VANCOUVER—Seattle Hungarians have been accepted as eighth team in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, and there is a possibility that the league may have as many as nine members when the season opens Sept. 15.

Hungarians were accepted on a one year probationary basis, and will play most of their home games on Sunday. Meanwhile, the B.C. Soccer Commission fined St. Andrews $100 and ordered the club to finish the promotion-relegation series with Pils, champions of the mainland soccer league. Scots won the first game, 3-0, then refused to play again and were suspended. Now the Canadian Soccer Football Association has lifted the suspension, provided the Scots pay the fine.

If they don't, Pils will automatically win the series and be promoted to the Coast League.

However, there is a joker. St. Andrews has already been awarded a franchise in the Coast League. If Pils should win the series, there is speculation that both teams would be allowed in, making it a nine-team league.

portant two points, taking advantage of a major penalty to George Longman to score twice on the odd-man play.

Results left them six points ahead of Nanaimo as they jockey for position in the playoffs. Nanaimo holds two games in hand, making them up at home tonight against New Westminster and here Monday against Burnaby. The clubs then finish off the season with a home-and-home series Wednesday in Victoria and Saturday in Nanaimo.

Jay's six-goal effort, high for the league this season, gives him 50 for the season, a career high. He also leads the league, with two more than New Westminster's Paul Parnell.

Jackie Wilson had a goal and three assists and Don Ash, Skip MacKay, Severson, Jim McNeill, Jack Showers and Ed Kowalyk got the other goals. Jay also had an assist.

Spot Open for Kubek After All—Mantle's

Tony Kubek rejoined the New York Yankees yesterday, and the best shortstop in the American League last year found that there may be a spot open for him in the lineup after all.

Rookie shortstop Tom Tresh and veteran leftfielder Hec Lopez, determined to hold their positions, yesterday continued the play which assures them of regular service as the Yankees extended their lead to six and a half games.

Tresh, batting about .280, improving steadily on defense, and with about 60 runs batted in despite his lead-off spot in the batting order, hit a home run and double in the 10-7 win over Chicago White Sox. Lopez, who was batting about .200 when he got the left-field job, hit four singles to boost his batting average over the .300 mark.

But Mickey Mantle, who sparked the Yankees to the streak which gave them the lead, is on the limp again and Kubek apparently felt heir to an unexpected, and unwanted job.

Taken out because he "didn't feel strong defensively." That meant he still can't run properly.

Six runs in the seventh inning carried Baltimore Orioles to a 6-3 win over Los Angeles Angels, who dropped into a second-place tie with Minnesota Twins. The Twins kept coming with a 7-4 win over Detroit Tigers which was featured by a mighty home run by Harmon Killebrew.

Over in the National League, outfielder Frank Thomas must be cussing the fates which sent him to New York Mets.

Thomas is on a home-run binge which yesterday saw him tie a major league record, but he seldom finds anyone on base when he connects. He connected twice yesterday, Pirates, 5-2.

San Francisco's second-place Giants slid a game further back, losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2.

Packers Outlast Collegiate Stars

CHICAGO (AP)—Green Bay Packers finally wore down a surprisingly talented All-Star football team Friday night before 65,000, winning the 29th game in the classic series 42-20 on five touchdown passes by quarterback Bart Starr.

But it was the passing of John Hadl of Kansas, drafted by San Diego Chargers of the rival American Football League, that kept the National Football League champions scrambling until deep into the third period when the Packers finally took command.

Hadl's passes put the All-Stars in front 7-0 on the opening kickoff, and after the Packers tied it 7-7, Greg Mather took advantage of a fumble to kick the first of two field goals, this from the 26, to put the All-Stars ahead 10-7 in the second period.

With the Packers leading 14-10 at the start of the second half, Hadl passed 21 yards to Charlie Bryant to send the All-Stars in front 17-14. Then Mather kicked another field goal, this for 14 yards, to narrow the score to 21-20. But two fourth period touchdown passes from Starr to Max McGee, one for 20 and the other for 35 yards, put the game away safely.

Parksville Shelves Winter Club Plan

PARKSVILLE (Special)—Hopes of having a skating and curling rink in Parksville have been dashed for the time being due to lack of sufficient financing for the project.

Directors of the recently-formed Parksville-Qualicum Winter Club have announced that plans for a rink in Parksville Community Park have been dropped, at least temporarily, following a meeting of members at which a vote was taken to decide the fate of the club.

Only 25 members turned out, and they decided by a 13-12 vote to drop the project for the time being and return all monies collected to date.

Some $20,000 had been realized from the sale of $200 membership fees and a further $31,000 was to have been raised through the sale of five per cent debentures. Of the latter amount, only about $6,000 had been promised, it was reported to the meeting by club president Lorne Anderson.

DEATH A SETBACK
Planned construction on land leased from the Parksville Community Society and the sudden death last month of Wally Antrim were the biggest reasons for the failure of the project.

Many district residents said they would invest in debentures if the rink site was owned by the club but weren't interested otherwise. The death of Antrim, popular and well-known curler, who suffered a heart attack while walking back to his car after watching a Little League baseball game in Nanaimo on July 21 and died in hospital early the following morning, was a discouraging blow. Antrim was largely responsible for the plan and his death put a damper on project progress.

Cricket's 'Social Liability' Gets Away with Reprimand

By PAUL WESTBROOK
LONDON (CP)—Fiery Freddie Trueman is in trouble again. The Yorkshire cricketer has a knack of knocking down wickets with record-breaking regularity. He is equally adept at rubbing authority the wrong way.

His latest exploit was turning up late for his team's recent match with Somerset in Taunton. While skipper Vic Wilson fumed in the pavilion, England's fast bowler was fast asleep in his hotel room.

Yorkshire took the field with reserve Mick Cowan, a short time later a flustered, unfed, unshowered Trueman arrived. Wilson ordered him to go home — which in polite cricket parlance means: "You'll hear from us later." While the Somerset batsmen drubbed the weakened opposition bowling, Trueman invited the press to quote some of the colorful edicts he comes out with on these occasions.

In an accept as broad as his 200-pound frame, Yorkshire's favored sportsman explained that he had arrived at Taunton after a 300-mile car drive and asked to be awakened at 9:15 a.m.

He overslept and an apologetic chambermaid was produced to say she had forgotten to wake him at the designated time.

'SOCIAL LIABILITY'
Trueman went before the crusty club committee with the threat of suspension hanging over his head. But he got off with a reprimand and the England selectors, who had chosen him for the fourth Test against Pakistan, breathed a sigh of relief.

Trueman's most famous gentleman's disagreement happened several years ago when England officials took exception to his choice of words and removed him from the team. "My swearing has cost me 70 Test wickets," says the 32-year-old batsman's nightmare.

And there will be many others in the more than 100 entrants who are capable of winning. Included in the latter group are John Buckmaster of Victoria and Hank O'Mara of Vancouver.

O'Mara will again team with Bailey in defence of the two-man team championship the pair won last year with a perfect 200x200.

Practice shooting, both today and tomorrow, will start at 9 a.m. with competitive shooting starting an hour later.

Three events will be staged today, starting with the 110-gauge and then the 20-gauge, both 100 birds. Then follows a preliminary all-gauge shoot with 50 birds.

The championship event, 100 birds, all-gauge, will take place Sunday morning. Out of this will come the provincial champion and the over-70 and junior champions. This will be followed by a five-man team shoot.

GENEVA (AP)—Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, said today talks are progressing toward a fight with Archie Moore, San Diego veteran and part time light-heavyweight champion.

At stake will be perpetual trophies for grand championship, junior championship, open-sight, peep sight, and scope shooting.

Riders Are Stronger But Is It Enough?

By SCOTT SCHILL
REGINA (CP)—In two days Saskatchewan Roughriders open the 1962 Western Football Conference season at home against Calgary Stampede and head coach Steve Owen has little time left in which to reach the player limit.

The veteran coach, starting his second season at Saskatchewan, admits it will be a tough job. "We have no starting lineup yet. Up until now everyone has been a candidate."

"We're stronger than last year, but I think all the other western clubs are, too. How can I say what we'll do this year? I don't know myself."

Saskatchewan, after two seasons in the cellar, finished fourth in 1961. The team will have to climb another notch this year to reach the playoffs.

Owen said Wednesday night he believes he has improved the team's 1961 weak spots at end and tackle.

PLENTY OF CANDIDATES
Five import ends are in camp. All-star Jack Gotta is expected to corner one spot on the offensive team, while import Garner Ekstran and Canadian Ron Meadmore, a draftee from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, appear to have the inside track on the defensive end posts.

The addition of guard Darrel Ashbacher, an Oregon University grad who played first string with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League in 1959, has strengthened Roughriders' offensive line.

Ashbacher retired to become a commercial pilot, but returned to professional football this year.

Riders appear strong at tackle with holdovers imports Al Benecick and Bob Golik and Canadians Len Legault and Reg Whitehouse.

Second-year Canadian Ted Urness can play guard or centre and veteran all-star Ron Atchison can play centre or middle guard. Holdovers Neil Habig and Galen Wahlmeier both seek the first string centre spot.

THREE QUARTERBACKS
Owen has indicated he may use three import quarterbacks — Bob Pateck, in this third year at Saskatchewan, sophomore Dave Grosz and rookie Dave Sarette.

Pateck and Grosz also shine in defensive action. Pateck was an all-star as a linebacker in 1961 and Grosz was used as defensive halfback and safety. Holdovers Clair Branch and Fred Burket are trying for the fullback spot while at the half Owen has returnees Ray Purdin, Ray Smith and Bill Gray.

Another bright spot has been the play of four new Canadian backs—Bob Good from the Lakehead, Bob Myers and Dale West of Saskatoon, all rookies, and Roy Cameron, who came in a trade from Edmonton Eskimos.

The defensive team has been strengthened by the return of 12-year veteran Bill Clarke following an operation on his left leg.

B.C. Skeet Shoot Opens Here Today

What officials describe as probably the strongest field ever to compete in a skeet shoot here will start firing today at the Albert Head grounds of the Victoria Gun Club, seeking the provincial title won last year by New Westminster's Frank Opsal.

There will be 25 top-class shooters from Vancouver and a contingent from Alberta as well as almost every leading scatter-gunner on the island. There will be at least six former champions — Ernie

Todd, Bill Pearsall, Dab Noble and Ted Bailey of Victoria and Frank Cooper and Harvey Mackie of Vancouver—disputing Opsal's hopes of a second straight victory.

And there will be many others in the more than 100 entrants who are capable of winning. Included in the latter group are John Buckmaster of Victoria and Hank O'Mara of Vancouver.

O'Mara will again team with Bailey in defence of the two-man team championship the pair won last year with a perfect 200x200.

Practice shooting, both today and tomorrow, will start at 9 a.m. with competitive shooting starting an hour later.

Three events will be staged today, starting with the 110-gauge and then the 20-gauge, both 100 birds. Then follows a preliminary all-gauge shoot with 50 birds.

The championship event, 100 birds, all-gauge, will take place Sunday morning. Out of this will come the provincial champion and the over-70 and junior champions. This will be followed by a five-man team shoot.

GENEVA (AP)—Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, said today talks are progressing toward a fight with Archie Moore, San Diego veteran and part time light-heavyweight champion.

Pageant Cast Votes Tonight

It's up to the 1,000-strong cast of Victoria's centennial pageant whether excerpts will be preserved in a color movie—and they have until tonight to think it over.

Victoria centennial committee and the John B. Rogers Co. of Fostoria, Ohio, said yesterday they were willing to waive all claims which might stand in the way of the Jaycee plan to film the show.

There may not be time to arrange a filming by artificial light, which would force a day-light performance Sunday solely for the camera. The cast last night indicated it would do this show but there was enough adverse reaction for another vote tonight. CBC-TV videotaped the show last night.

VMD Wins Contract

Victoria Machinery Depot has invaded the Australian market.

VMD captured the contract in competitive bidding with firms all over the world.

REAL CAOUCETTE

Caouette Backs Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP)—Real Caouette, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, said here Friday he will give Premier Bennett as much assistance as possible in his dispute with the federal government over the Columbia River treaty.

The treaty with the United States has not been ratified by Canada because of a dispute with B.C. over financing the multi-million-dollar international project.

"If we can be of any help to B.C. we will. If Mr. (Prime Minister) Diefenbaker interferes with provincial rights we will fight, because provincial autonomy has to be respected by the federal government," he said.

Mr. Caouette predicted another federal election in from 12 to 18 months.

He also said Social Credit will not fight provincial elections in Quebec "because Social Credit won't work provincially."

Twin Explosions Start Salmon Farming Plan

Twin explosions churned the placid waters of Horne Lake yesterday, marking the start of a $2,000,000 salmon farming experiment.

Five hundred pounds of explosive were used to blow out rock plugs, letting tons of water surge into the first stage of the tunnel linking Horne Lake with Big Qualicum River.

GATES OPENED

When flow gates are partially opened early next week the fish biologists' dream of turning Big Qualicum into the world's first temperature and flow controlled salmon spawning river will be reality.

The experts hope it will see the Pacific salmon fishery built up to a level known even in the "old days" of fishermen's reminiscences.

Charles Clay, chief engineer on the project, told the Colonist last night the double blast triggered at 6:30 p.m. was "pretty spectacular."

END OF WORK

For tunnel diggers and construction men it was the end of many months of arduous work.

Everything went off according to plan when the tunnel plugs, one 75 feet below lake level and the other 25 feet down, were blown out.

Flood gates installed by workmen operating on double shifts over the last week to complete the tunnel were closed beforehand. The gates will be gradually opened over a period of several days next week, officials said.

No sudden surge of water down the river is expected, but a small freshet will build up as the river flow is increased from its present 60 cubic feet per second to 1,000 cubic feet a second.

Authorities say the unseasonal freshet will not harm coho fry which now fill the river.

Suspects Questioned In Girl's Beating

A number of suspects were questioned yesterday by RCMP in connection with the brutal beating Thursday of a seven-year-old East Sooke girl. None was detained.

Police are looking for a man believed to be about 20. He abducted the girl in a car believed to be a 1950 model, dark green, after asking her direction to a nearby residence.

'Quick Action Will Save Green Space'

Victoria should immediately dedicate its Elk-Beaver Lake property for public park use as a safeguard from encroachment by highway planners, Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said last night.

Injured

Joan Frost, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thom, 3044 Jackson, was in critical condition in a Seattle hospital Friday after a head-on collision near Renton. The couple was headed for Victoria at the time of the crash. The bride graduated from Victoria High School in 1958.

He said dedication of city-owned property fringing the two Saanich lakes is "long overdue" and immediate action on the part of city council would strengthen the hand of local authorities in case of a show-down battle.

HAS NO INKLING

Saanich isn't prepared to accept any route for the proposed new Patricia Bay Highway which will encroach on recreation areas, but so far had no inkling of government plans, said Reeve Murphy.

"We haven't been consulted," the reeve said. If the B.C. highways department tries attempts to force the city to give up part of the recreation area to make way for the new highway there would be a "great public outcry," said Reeve Murphy.

PROJECT START

He said the nine-hole golf course which Saanich plans to develop on 80 acres owned by the city at Beaver Lake is to be the start of a large joint recreation project.

The city is to lease the property to Saanich for $1 a year under an agreement that would see all profits poured back in further joint developments of the recreation area to serve all Greater Victoria.

SPACE PURCHASE

Reeve Murphy also noted the B.C. government is already spending "hundreds of thousands of dollars" on purchase of green space flanking Trans-Canada Highway between Goldstream and the entrance to the city.

"Yet, if the reports are true, the same government is apparently prepared to sacrifice existing green space at Elk-Beaver Lake to the interests of its own highways department," he said.

ANOTHER HAZARD

The folly of creating another hazard like the one already existing at Elk Lake where the highway runs close to bathing beaches, must be opposed "by every reasonable person in Greater Victoria," said Reeve Murphy.

Earlier Ald. Millard Mooney, chairman of city parks committee and a dogfight fighter for the development of Elk-Beaver Lake as a recreational area, said he had come across "disturbing reports" the highways department tentative draft of Pat Bay Highway relocation would slice off some of the Beaver Lake wooded area.

Jumbo-Sized Surprise

Did you ever look out in the backyard in the morning and see an elephant? Irving Doud, 2255 James White Boulevard, Sidney, got the shock of his life Friday when it happened to him. The 11,000 pounds of muscle and meat was lying contentedly in the yard after a truck belonging to Carson and Barnes Circus broke down. The circus went on to Duncan leaving the elephant in the hands of a trainer. — (Ryan Bros. photo.)

Show on Mall Braves Rain

Several hundred Victorians yesterday braved early afternoon downpours to watch an international show at the Broad Street centennial mall.

And a capacity crowd turned up for last night's performance of the centennial pageant, The Victoria Story. Pre-pageant entertainment carried on the mall show's international theme, with a couple of the same acts.

LAST CHANCE

Tonight will probably be the last chance for Victorians to see the pageant—unless they had tickets for Thursday night's rained-out show.

A special showing will be presented to Thursday's patrons Sunday night.

An official last night said there will probably be no additional tickets sold for the Sunday night performance because there is already Thursday's capacity crowd to accommodate, and because officials believe Sabbath observance laws might make additional ticket sales illegal.

Entertainment at the Broad Street mall from 2 to 5 p.m.

today will be two hours by the Kitilano Showboat, Vancouver, followed by an hour of Summer Showcase, now being presented at Club Sirocco.

A new bronze bust of Queen Elizabeth will be unveiled at Beacon Hill Park Sunday at 3 p.m. The bust by Arthur Price of Ottawa, a nationally known sculptor, is worked from, and replaces, an original one by Peggy Walton Packard of Victoria which was damaged by vandals.

SINGING MISS

Highlight of yesterday's mall and pre-pageant shows was a group of traditional Japanese dancers from Vancouver. Miss Victoria, Synnove Petersen, sang at both afternoon and night events.

Ukrainian dancers, Danish can-can, German songs by Mrs. Gretchen Adam, accordion stylings by Al Denoni and a juke exhibition by Lanky Inouye rounded out the mall show. The German-language Victoria Harmonie Choir sang, and the Sons of Norway danced before the pageant.

Street Now Place

The south end of Bank Street, separated from the rest of the street by Norfolk House School, will be renamed Laurentian Place.

This was decided yesterday by city public works committee following a petition from the six residents of the short street who claimed nobody could find their end.

Laurentian Place was one of the names suggested by residents. It was also approved by the city post office.

Sought by Police

Mystery Sniper Misses Woman

A mystery sniper who narrowly missed shooting a James Bay housewife with a rifle bullet late Thursday is being sought by city police.

The .32 calibre long rifle bullet that crashed through the kitchen window where only seconds before Mrs. Leonard Chaplin was washing supper dishes apparently was fired from close range.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin, caretakers at the Optimist Building, 106 Superior, called police after the bullet crashed through the window and bounced off a brick wall in the kitchen of the building at 7 p.m. Thursday night.

JUST MOVED

Mrs. Chaplin said she had been standing in front of the window for some time and had just moved away when she heard the glass shatter and a "rattling" noise (probably the spent bullet falling to the floor).

Her husband said his wife would have been hit in the throat if she had not moved.

OVERLOOKS STREET

The window overlooks Kingston Street and an oil company plant. Beyond that is the entrance of the Inner Harbor.

Mr. Chaplin said he doubted if the shot had been fired by someone on the Esquimalt side of the harbor because of the velocity of the bullet when it entered the room.

MRS. LEONARD CHAPLIN ... moved in time

No More Sweating

So far as city traffic committee is concerned, parking meter-checking commissionaires can leave their heavy jackets off in the hot weather.

Members of the traffic committee decided this yesterday after the chairman, Ald. Michael Griffin, predicted some of the commissionaires would die from heat prostration if they continued to wear their jackets. Committee decided to notify the commissionaires it would raise no objections.

Escaped Convict Nabbed

Escaped convict Peter Richard Solowman, 29, has been recaptured in Vancouver, Colwood RCMP reported yesterday.

Vancouver city police apprehended Solowman, who walked away from the William Head minimum security prison July 18.

RCMP said they had no details on where Solowman had been picked up. An escort left for Vancouver yesterday to bring him back to face a charge of escaping lawful custody.

Solowman, who was serving a three-year term for breaking and entering, was reported to have been worried about his ailing wife. He walked away from a lawn-mowing chore at the prison wearing prison denims.

Slowpokes Criticized

Slowpoke drivers who hug the centre line were attacked yesterday by the Victoria branch of the B.C. Automobile Association.

The dawdlers were one of two types of city driver attacked by the association in a letter to city streets and traffic committee.

EVER-INCREASING

"There appear to be an ever-increasing number of motorists driving in Victoria who consistently hug the white line and travel well below safety speeds and the maximum speed limit, causing obstruction and inconvenience to those motorists following," the letter said.

VERY DANGEROUS

"Owing to the general narrowness of Victoria streets, this makes overtaking either an impossibility or generally a very dangerous evolution for the driver who is trying to get ahead."

The association also attacked drivers who crowded into intersections on Government Street, between Fort and Humboldt Streets, blocking cross traffic.

FOR BOTH WAYS

And the letter asked for consideration of the proposal that left turns be prohibited on Government Street — for both north and south-bound traffic — between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The letter was referred to city traffic engineer Kenneth Reid.

Clubhouse Court Suit Dismissed

A Supreme Court action launched by Crystal Court Motel, protesting a city bylaw permitting erection of a renovated army hut as the clubhouse for the Canadian Pacific Lawn Bowling Association, was dismissed by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes yesterday.

No reasons were stated for the decision, which was handed down after presentation of arguments by counsel for both the motel and the city during the morning.

Rodney Taylor counsel for Crystal Court Motel contended the amending bylaw to the zoning bylaw which established and regulated the type and use of buildings in the area was discriminatory.

He said, in effect, the city passed bylaws regulating building usage by other people, then passed amending bylaws exempting itself from such regulations.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady contended the city, in many cases, was entitled to discriminate in its own favor.

Elworthy Raps Report

Fireboat Critics Doused

Harold Elworthy, president of Island Tug and Barge Ltd., which maintains the Island Comet fireboat available to attack fire at any time, yesterday

Validity of a recent report that Victoria's fire-fighting services are inferior was seriously questioned yesterday by city businessman Harold Elworthy.

"It was with surprise that we read ... a report from the Fire Underwriters' Association suggesting that the city of Victoria should have a fireboat with 2,000 gallons per minute capacity," he wrote in a letter to Mayor R. B. Wilson.

BOAT STANDING BY

"Our present equipment provides a capacity of 6,300 gallons a minute, and is standing by, ready to render fire fighting assistance anywhere on the waterfront."

Mr. Elworthy included in his letter a number of photographs of the Island Comet fireboat in action. His firm provides the fireboat under a $4,800 a year contract.

COMMENTS REPORT

He was commenting on a report by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association severely criticizing Victoria's fire-fighting services.

"To our knowledge no one from the Fire Underwriters' Association has visited our plant to ascertain what firefighting equipment is available," Mr. Elworthy continued.

"One therefore questions the basis of their report."

Start on Blight Program Can't Come Until October

It will be at least two months before a start can be made on physical rehabilitation of blighted areas of Victoria planned by city council.

Ald. A. W. Toome, chairman of the city's urban renewal committee, made this clear yesterday in a verbal report to his committee.

"We are collecting and correlating information now," he said, "and this will take anywhere from two to three months to complete."

"We cannot hope to proceed before two months from this date, at least."

The information is being gathered on three major projects:

● Purchase of 25 acres of land southeast of the Fountain Circle, demolition of all structures on it and redevelopment of the area to provide higher-class structures;

● Rehabilitation of two main buildings in Chinatown and erection of a short pedestrian mall in the 500 block of Fisgard Street;

● Closing of some cross streets in Victoria West with creation of park-like pedestrian malls between curbs.

Meet Tuesday

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will meet in the Legion hall at 1616 Blanshard at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Second Look At Precinct

City council's advisory planning commission has been told to have another look at its controversial plan to create a government precinct in the James Bay area around the legislative buildings.

"The commission is making a further study of the whole James Bay area and action on the precinct bylaw will be held up until we get the commission's report," Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

Barber Quits To Serve 70-Hour Week

ST. JACOBS, Ont. (CP)—One day in 1949 a 30-year-old man, St. Mary's, Ont., barber, C. Bert Carr, was taking the apron from his chair at the start of the day when he suddenly threw it to the floor, walked to the phone and called his wife.

"Honey, how would you feel if I decided to quit barbering and become a minister?" he asked.

"It's no surprise," his wife replied. "I've been expecting you to say something like this for a long time."

Today he is Rev. Bert Carr, pastor of the Joint Evangelical United Brethren church of Calgary in this community a few miles northwest of Kitchener and of Zion in nearby Florida.

He has exchanged the 40-hour week of the barber for the 70-hour week of the minister, becoming pastor to about 250 adults and children in the two-point charge.

And he has learned that the minister's life is something like the doctor's. "We're always on call. The well-being of the people in my churches must come first."

Mr. Carr's interest in religion stems from his youth when, as a Roman Catholic, he decided to become a priest and entered St. Mary's College, Blair, Aberdeen, Scotland.

A year and a half later he rebelled against the discipline and quit.

He moved to Canada, married and settled down to his life as a barber. One day in April, 1953, he went with his sister to hear an evangelist at a small church in London, Ont.

"Someone had been praying for me for I had no intention of going to London to be saved," he recalls. "But after the invitation from the evangelist, I felt that I either had to go to the altar or walk out of the church."

He went to the altar. Afterwards he became an active member of Temple Baptist Church in Sarnia.

When his decision was finally made, things moved quickly. He found difficulties in entering the Baptist ministry at his age. But one Sunday he preached at an Evangelical United Brethren Church in Deshler, Ont., his wife's hometown, and was encouraged to proceed with his plans.

He took a four-year correspondence course and was assigned to a church at Port Elgin, Ont.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Sex is the major problem of turbulence in teenage. "I wonder if my parents were young," a teen-age girl told me. "They just don't seem to understand. Sometimes I go almost crazy, I want to make love so much." The problem is aggravated by heavy petting.

Children who have had a wholesome life and fairly adequate sex education tend to have a more mature and healthy sex life later. If parents are not frank and wholehearted in their treatment of the subject of sex and procreation, then the sex experience of a child will be extremely painful.

Sex becomes a problem for the most part in an inadequate personality structure. Children from a poor home background almost invariably reflect it in interpersonal relationships and sexual behavior.

Exhibitionism, masturbation, and homosexuality are problems more frequently encountered than most people suspect. The capacity for true love and marriage is often blocked.

Many who come to me fear they have sinned beyond forgiveness. The guilty feelings are often so deep it is most difficult to bring the wretched person from self-flagellation into self-respect.

Too often the attitude of both parent and church has been harsh and condemning. A bad job has been done by the church in sex education of its youth, its attitude of being merely negative, and discussion of sex in church groups tabu.

Utter Self-Giving

To an animal sexual intercourse is merely gratification of desire, to the human being it is an inter-twining of two total lives and must involve responsibility to be honest.

The sexual act expresses a complete self-giving and commitment of life to another so they "become one flesh."

Therefore marriage is the only social structure in which the sex act can be honestly performed. Anything else is bound to result in guilt and self-disgust.

The statement that traditional morality has been rejected and it is normal to have sex relations outside marriage is ridiculous. If our traditional attitude to sex has produced much tragic emotional misery, the substitution of a laissez-faire attitude is far more destructive of all good social achievement and personality development.

No one would deny the tragedy wrought by abnormal guilt feelings. On the other hand to regard guilt feeling as bad in itself is much worse for a sense of sin is a mark of grace. Chastity is still the ideal to which every youth should be directed for chastity makes a better personality, a happier marriage, and a finer society.

Mennonites Told:

Stress Pacifist Beliefs

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—A Mennonite missionary Thursday night urged delegates at a world conference of Mennonites here to stress the faith's pacifist beliefs and speak out against nuclear arms.

Rev. Nelson Litwiler, stationed at Elkhart, Ind., attacked the "self-styled realists"—generals, legislators and nuclear scientists—who spent 60 per cent of the United States budget on arms while admitting there was no adequate defence to nuclear attack.

He suggested if one side renounced "the economically disastrous and ethically condemnable armaments race," the other side might do the same.

The Christian church has failed in its responsibility, he said, in not combatting a situation where nations are "preparing to obliterate 50,000,000 people in retaliation for 50,000,000."

Mr. Litwiler spoke to an overflow crowd in Kitchener Auditorium. Some 7,000 Mennonites have converged from Europe and North America on this city 75 miles west of Toronto.

The Mennonite church claims some 212,000 members—about 33,000 in Canada—in 12 branches of the main faith.

As children approach adolescence they should be prepared for the vital bodily changes entering upon adulthood and maturity. The body is good and sex is not sinful; the failure to recognize this has led to much suffering and abnormality.

In counselling I am told over and over again of feelings of guilt and sex offense that have led to despair and near suicide. Many are distressed by sex experiments of childhood, with consequent distorted emotional development.

Frequent Troubles

Home and church should point the way to self-fulfillment and self-development rather than mere denial, a way which is not burdensome moralism, but ultimate joy and fulfillment, with a fullness of life impossible otherwise.

Chastity is a positive, not a negative virtue, honoring others and respecting one's own personality.

Prurient and extramarital sex relations are destructive both of society and personality. Promiscuity, like delinquency, is a symptom of personality disorder and affliction, of immaturity and egotism, and the promiscuous person should be pitied.

Gardens Captivate Ambassador's Wife

By DOBOTHY WROTHOWSKI

"I am completely captivated by the beautiful gardens here," Madame Raymond Bousquet said on her first one day visit to Victoria.

Mme Bousquet accompanied her husband, the ambassador for France to Canada, from the mainland to attend a luncheon given by the Alliance Francaise at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

The visitors were met at the Patricia Bay Airport in the morning and were driven directly to Butchart's Gardens. And according to Mme Bousquet "the gardens are truly wonderful, the grass so green, the flowers so colorful and the lovely perfume of the air."

Mme Bousquet insists that the grass and foliage here is the greenest she has ever seen.

From Butchart's the visitors were taken to Beacon Hill Park then around Marine Drive to the hotel for lunch.

The freshly caught salmon that was served at lunch Mme Bousquet said was better than any salmon she had ever tasted in Europe. And she considers herself in the gourmet class when it comes to food.

The Bousquets brought their own chef, butler and maid with them to Canada when His Excellency received his new posting three months ago.

Mme. Bousquet is very slim and attractive. Yesterday she was wearing a smart, simply cut suit in grey and white and a grey and white hat with rolled up brim.

Asking her how she stayed so slim on a diet of French cooking with the accompanying sauces, I learned that Madame is one of the lucky ones.

"I can eat anything and everything, it simply makes no difference," she said. And added that she would like to put on a little weight.

The visit to the west is the first for Mme Bousquet. In fact when she arrived in Canada it was her first visit to the new world. "I feel like Christopher Columbus discovering new things all the time," she says.

Like many other Europeans, Mme Bousquet is most impressed with the vastness of this land.

"When we were in Belgium (their last posting) we could drive from border to border in an hour and a half so you can understand how I feel about the mountains and the prairies."

The Bousquets flew to the west from Ottawa but are returning East by train at Madame's request. "I am looking forward to having the prairies for breakfast, lunch and dinner" was the way she put it.

First they will go to Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper before going home.

Before leaving yesterday, Mme Bousquet looked out of the large windows at the Oak Bay Hotel and said most sincerely "there is nothing I would like better than to have a little house here with green grass, flowers in a garden, overlooking that lovely blue sea."

PERSONAL MENTION

FULFORD — Members of the Victoria Women's Institute proved they could skate on thin ice and get away with it at the Fulford Hall when they attended the raspberry tea sponsored by the South Salt Spring Island W.I.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter, Shirley, is 21 years old. She lives at home and we all get along fairly well. I'm writing about a problem which may seem peculiar but we need an answer.

Shirley took a special course after she graduated from high school because she wanted to be a secretary. She has quit three office jobs, all with fine companies, because she claims she can't get up in the morning no matter how hard she tries.

Her present job is waiting on tables in a cocktail lounge from 5 p.m. till 1 a.m. She says she's much happier. Her father insists she could get up in the morning if she wanted to, and he cites as an example the fact that she got up for 12 years to go to school. He thinks she prefers waitress work because the social life is better. How about this? — LOOKING FOR THE TRUTH

Dear Looking: Your daughter got up in the morning to go to school because school was compulsory. Now that she has a choice she has chosen the late shift.

Some individuals are day people, others are night people. If Shirley feels better sleeping mornings and working nights, leave her be. It's the girl who wants to sleep mornings and not work at all that I'm concerned about.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married 20 years. We have a lovely daughter.

When we were newlyweds, we figured out our budget according to his pay cheque. He gave me $10 a week for groceries. Well, his pay cheque has doubled in the past 20 years and the price of living has gone up plenty, but I'm still getting $30 a week for groceries.

Last night we were out with some friends and he picked up the cheque for cocktails. The bill was $8.80. My big shot husband left a $4 tip. My blood pressure must have shot up 50 points. I asked him when we got home why he did that and he said "Because it makes me feel good." I told him that now he feels good, he should make me feel good by increasing my allowance for groceries. Please print this in the paper and add a few salty remarks. It may help.—SCRIMPING WIFE

Dear Scrimping: If you can feed a family of three on $10 a week you're entitled to membership in the magician's union. Your husband should give you at least $20 a week for groceries. If he thinks you are not managing properly, give him the $10 and let him try to do better. You'll get your job back pronto—and an increase.

Zoo Operator Fights to Save Reptile Parcel

By KLAUS MUELTNER
DUNCAN—A shipment of rare lizards, desert snakes and iguanas from Dutch Guiana and Africa to the Duncan reptile zoo may be destroyed by post office headquarters in Ottawa.

Zoo owner Jim Oyen has been advised by a Victoria post office official that the shipment from Holland by airmail is against regulations.

The reptiles have been sent to Ottawa with a recommendation from Victoria that they be destroyed.

WENT TO APPEAL

Mr. Oyen disclosed yesterday he was advised Thursday of the ruling and went to Victoria post office to appeal. He said: "If they go ahead in Ottawa and kill the reptiles which are not even my property yet but still belong to the Dutch importer in Holland, the postmaster-general will have to face unpleasant consequences."

SEND EXPEDITIONS

The angry zoo operator added he had advised Ottawa officials of this, adding that, if the postmaster-general is willing to send expeditions to the jungles of South America and Africa to replace these rare specimens, not obtainable from any dealer, he can go ahead and kill the contents of the unlawful package.

CAUGHT BY SOCIETY

Mr. Oyen said the reptiles were caught by a world-wide international society, Lacerta, of which he is a member. "After these animals travelled around the globe through several countries without any difficulty," he said, "their final delivery across the counter of the Victoria post office failed through the efficiency of one employee."

B-47 Jet Crashes

PEASE AIR BASE, N.H. (AP) — A B-47 jet bomber crashed on takeoff from Pease Air Force Base Friday night. There were no survivors.

Wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area and the plane's burning fuel transformed the area into an inferno.

Germ Warfare Kills Scientist

LONDON (AP)—The disease that killed a British germ warfare research scientist was identified Friday night as pneumonic plague—the dread Black Death which ravaged Europe in the middle ages.

Precautions were taken to guard against its spread across England after the war office announced the result of an autopsy on 44-year-old George A. Bacon, research officer at Britain's principal germ warfare establishment.

About 40 persons known to have had recent contact with Bacon were kept under rigid surveillance and dosed with antibiotic drugs.

Bacon was reported working on pneumonic and bubonic plague at the Microbiological Research Establishment at Porton Down, situated in an isolated area of Salisbury Plain. Stricken last Sunday, he died in hospital Wednesday.

Experiments in lethal diseases have been going on at Porton Down for 17 years. Techniques have been worked out for combatting hundreds of killer infections. A few ounces of some of the germs under experiment would be enough to wipe out whole populations.

All the staff are heavily treated with immunization vaccines.

Ferociously contagious, pneumonic plague was jumped with bubonic plague under the heading of the Black Death in the 14th century.

Three teen-agers almost pulled off the robbery successfully but the plot collapsed when they tried to "fence" 3,000 dew worms valued at $100.

Hula Greets Canadians

SEATTLE (AP)—The Canadian Navy received a shaky welcome Friday at Seattle's annual week-long Seafair. The shakes were provided by a double line of hula dancers in the rain who met HMCS Saguenay and HMCS Fraser.

Seafair princesses hurried kisses—candy, that is—Seafair Queen Gail Held planted kisses—real ones—on Capt. Victor Browne and the ship's crew.

Prisoners May Be Force-Fed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fifty-four Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, on a hunger strike in the federal prison at Agassiz in the Fraser Valley, will be force-fed if they fail to feed themselves, prison authorities said Friday.

B.C. Penitentiary Warden T. W. Hall and assistant warden G. S. Merritt said that such action will not necessarily be taken in the immediate future, however.

"It will have to be done eventually," said Mr. Merritt, "but they can last a long time yet on water—Gandhi lasted 72 days."

11-DAY STRIKE

The Doukhobors have been on their hunger strike for 11 days.

Warden Hall said hunger strikes by the Doukhobors are not new. Several times in the past they had to be force-fed.

"I believe their longest hunger strike lasted 30 days," he said.

The prisoners, serving various terms for terrorist activities in the Kootenays, are checked daily by a doctor and Mr. Hall said Friday all still are in good condition physically.

Sentence Suspended

Worms Turn On Robbers

TORONTO (CP)—Evidence in the great worm robbery was solemnly heard in suburban Willowdale court yesterday.

Three teen-agers almost pulled off the robbery successfully but the plot collapsed when they tried to "fence" 3,000 dew worms valued at $100.

Local Warship Sabotaged?

Possibility of sabotage aboard an RCN Pacific Command destroyer escort is being investigated by RCMP, the Colonist learned yesterday.

HMCS Margaree has been undergoing repairs for two weeks in HMC Dockyard after a breakdown of one of her main engines.

The navy last night confirmed a defect had been found in a gear casing. An official statement said damage to the ship's engines was limited to one gear pinion.

There is a possibility the breakdown was not due to an equipment failure within the gear casing; therefore, the navy said, RCMP have been asked to conduct a routine investigation.

Margaree is scheduled to return to service next week after repairs to the gear train of one main engine. No further official statements are expected until the RCMP has completed its probe.

Keeping Feet Fit

The unusual is often the usual in Victoria and this pair—out cooling their feet between showers yesterday—got only a casual glance from passersby. Here the barefooted twosome strolls down Yates Street—and not a shoestore in sight.—(Ryan Bros. photo.)

Comet's Blow Red Solution

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian scientists believe they have detected the first known case of a comet from outer space striking this earth.

The Soviet claim, now widely supported but still not proved beyond doubt, was related Friday by Dominion astronomer Dr. C. S. Beals following an 18-day visit to Russia.

LONG RAFFLED

If the comet theory is correct, it will explain a natural phenomenon that has baffled the world's scientists for more than half a century.

The mystery dates back to 1908 when Tunguska, in a remote part of central Siberia, was bombarded by what until recently was considered one of the only two recorded major meteorite falls in history. The other occurred in 1947 in eastern Siberia.

Although the fall resulted in great disturbances in the air waves with the shock felt thousands of miles away, no crater was ever discovered.

Harold Sanders, both 12, and Gary John Rowley, 17, had found the boxes of worms stacked on a golf course.

A local worm-picking magazine, whose crews had picked the slimy creatures, was able to identify them as his catch.

Magistrate Fred Hartman decided on stiff lectures for the three young worm thieves and suspended sentence for the trio.

Man Jailed For Remarks

BERLIN (Reuters) — A 25-year-old West Berliner was sentenced Friday to four months imprisonment for making anti-Semitic remarks in a restaurant.

John D Picks Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office said Friday that changes in the federal cabinet will be announced next Thursday.

The announcement will be made at noon, the office spokesman informed the parliamentary press gallery.

There was no word as to the number of appointments to be made. Five ministers were defeated in the June 18 general election.

SENDS RESIGNATION

Thursday, Solicitor-General Browne—the last of the five defeated ministers to leave office—sent in his resignation.

Earlier, Mines Minister Flynn State Secretary Dorion, Postmaster-General William Hamilton, and Works Minister Walker resigned and their portfolios were taken over by other ministers on an acting basis.

Drawing up a cabinet list is a complicated process for any prime minister. Custom, rather than law, requires every province to be represented and recognition given to language and religious groups.

MARTINEAU IN?

The consensus has been that Paul Martineau, 41, Pontiac - Termesingue, Deputy Speaker in the last Parliament and earlier one of Mr. Diefenbaker's parliamentary secretaries, will be taken into the cabinet.

Considered top candidate for the speakership of the New House has been Marcel Lambert, 43, Edmonton West, parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Nowlan and a bilingual Rhodes scholar.

QUEBEC MEMBERS

In addition to Mr. Martineau, Quebec members prominently mentioned as possible cabinet appointees are Theogene Ricard, 53, St. Hyacinthe-Bagot, Georges Valade, 40, Montreal St. Marie, and Roland English, 53, Gaspé.

If Mr. Diefenbaker wants at least one Quebec minister to be of English parentage, like former postmaster-general Hamilton, he has only one candidate—34-year-old Howard Graffley, Brome-Missisquoi.

SIMILAR SITUATION

A similar situation exists in the case of the Newfoundland cabinet vacancy. Only one Conservative was elected in this island province—James McGrath, 30, St. John's East, first elected to the Commons in 1957.

No change in cabinet representation for the Maritime provinces and Western Canada is expected unless some of the present ministers retire.

NEAR RETIREMENT

Revenue Minister Nowlan from Nova Scotia, 64 this month, Veterans Minister Churchill from Manitoba, 64 in November, and External Affairs Minister Green from British Columbia, 67 in November, are regarded as nearing retirement.

But their elevation to the Senate—there are vacancies there for Nova Scotia and Manitoba but not for B.C.—or appointment to some post outside of Parliament would mean by-elections would have to be held.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowden, arrived here by air Friday to attend independence celebrations for this 30-year-old British island colony.

British, Canadian and American warships in the harbor boomed out a salute.

The royal couple were met by the governor, Sir Kenneth Blackburne, with Lady Blackburne and Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante, who will preside over his nation's independence celebrations.

In her speech of welcome she said: "I was delighted when I was chosen by the Queen to represent her at your independence celebrations."

"I am proud to be associated with the people of Jamaica and so pleased my husband is with me to see the beauty of the island and the charm and friendliness of your people."

Man Jailed For Remarks

BERLIN (Reuters) — A 25-year-old West Berliner was sentenced Friday to four months imprisonment for making anti-Semitic remarks in a restaurant.

Vancouver's quadruplets.

Mother Doing Fine

VANCOUVER (CP)—Quadruplets, two boys and two girls, were born Friday to Mrs. Alec Becker, 105-pound wife of a Vancouver lawyer.

Mrs. Becker and the quadruplets—the third set born in British Columbia medical history—were "doing fine."

STILL SHOCKED

Mrs. Becker was still a little shocked and over-awed, but all right.

The babies, two weeks premature, weighed a total of 19 pounds 13 ounces at birth. They were delivered by caesarean section.

15 DOCTORS

Fifteen doctors attended Mrs. Becker at the birth of the quadruplets.

Oddly on quadruple births are 757,000-to-1.

The Beckers have one other child, a two-year-old boy.

Red Atheism 'An Ordeal'

LONDON (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, returned to London by air Friday night from Moscow and told reporters that his contact with "rank atheism" had proved an ordeal. He said he had been thrilled by the visit but felt the strain of staying in a Communist society.

PROOF IN EATING

Commenting on the Soviet promise of exchanges of Russian and British churchmen, Dr. Ramsey said the "proof of the pudding would be in the eating."

Dr. Ramsey said "the government there cannot quench the religion of the Russian people, even with their anti-God propaganda."

FOLLOW CHURCH

"Religion in Russia is not found only among the old and elderly people, but among young people, too, and in fact there are whole families which follow the Russian Orthodox Church."

The archbishop was promised by a Soviet official in Zagorsk, Russia, Friday that there would be an Anglo-Soviet exchange of churchmen.

Sits in Chair

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill got out of his hospital bed Friday, sat in a chair and met three grandchildren.

CLC Lists Automation Antidotes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress Friday unveiled a broad automation-era program.

In it, the central voice of 1,070,000 organized workers in Canada advocated that:

Governments at all levels must meet the need for grants-in-aid, loans, scholarships and financial aid for training workers displaced by technological change;

BASIC PROGRAMS

Sound basic education programs must be offered to help workers adapt themselves to changing skill requirements;

Aid must be provided to help workers and their families who are forced to move to new jobs because of changes in their industry.

At the same time, the CLC said its affiliated unions should press for higher wages or shorter hours—or both—as mechanization and automation increase productivity.

The congress executive council in other decisions, made public in a series of statements issued by CLC president Claude Jodoin urged that:

1. A national contributory pension plan be introduced to supplement present old-age pensions.

2. The government make out-right grants—not loans—to the unemployment insurance fund to maintain its ability to meet claims. The fund stood at $28,800,000 at June 30, with an emergency $25,000,000 loan ready to bolster it if necessary.

CBC GRANTS

3. The publicly-owned CBC be strengthened by five-year parliamentary grants—not annual grants as at present—so that long-term planning can be made.

4. Tighter control be imposed on private radio and television stations—including rules governing Canadian content and heavy commercialism during peak hours.

WAGE INCREASE

5. Postal workers be granted the wage increase deferred by the government's austerity program and also be given the right to bargain collectively on such issues as holidays, overtime pay, and check-off of dues.

'Smallpox' Negative

NEW YORK (AP) — A suspected case of smallpox threw a scare into medical circles here Friday, before several hours of tests showed the illness to be virus almost resembling chicken pox.

Collapse Of Bridge Kills Five

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Scaffolding and steel beams gave way under tons of fresh concrete on a highway bridge construction project Friday, killing at least five men.

The bodies of the five were removed from the rubble and debris under the span.

Tons of fresh concrete had been poured and the weight apparently was too much for the shoring. Tons of steel, concrete and timber came crashing down as the shoring gave way.

French School In B.C.?

OTTAWA (CP)—The general secretary of the Association of French Catholic School Committees, Noel Bazinet, hinted Friday that a French-language secondary school may be built soon in British Columbia.

He also announced plans to build a French-language teachers' college in Alberta.

LACK OF CONTACTS

Returning from a 16-day tour of the two western provinces, Mr. Bazinet said in an interview he did not find any lack of good will among school authorities. "However," he said, "there is a lack of understanding and, at times, a lack of contacts."

MAY BE SOLVED

The secretary had been investigating the situation of French-speaking Canadians in Western Canada and is to submit a report to the association.

Deploying the lack of secondary schools for French-speaking Canadians in British Columbia, Mr. Bazinet said this problem may be solved in the near future.

Strike Ends

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Normal work resumed throughout Argentina Friday after a 48-hour general strike which ended at midnight.

The general confederation of labor called the strike to back pay demands and other claims.

Tiny King Born In Stanley Park

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stanley Park Zoo has a new baby—a half-pound, nine-inch long king penguin.

The baby was hatched late Thursday after a 23-day period of incubation. If it survives it will be the third king penguin ever raised in captivity in North America.

Another egg is nearing the hatching point.

Coroner Lewis Ends Decade of Service

NANAIMO — Dr. W. H. Lewis has announced his retirement from the post of coroner, which he has held for 10 years.

Dr. Lewis, 72, has been active in community affairs during the 13 years he and Mrs. Lewis have lived in Nanaimo. He was for a number of years head of the Nanaimo branch of the CNIB.

Before coming to Nanaimo in 1949, he was medical director for the Canadian Arctic, under the minister of national health.

LADYSMITH — Death of Yukon resident William Nummy in a two-car head-on collision on the Trans-Canada Highway near Brampton Road June 9 has been ruled accidental with no blame attached to anyone by a coroner's jury.

Mr. Nummy was a passenger in a car driven by his brother Thomas. Driver of the other car was Rev. D. R. Houghton of Ladysmith.

NANAIMO — A brand new RCMP compact car, driven by Staff Sgt. Connolly of Victoria, was in a head-on collision Friday with an American station wagon, driven by Arthur Huppy of Seattle, on Terminal immediately in front of the tourist bureau.

It is believed the accident was due to the police car being forced to swerve to avoid being hit by a third vehicle, driven by Albert Leo Tremblay of Ladysmith.

Island Traffic Fines

NANAIMO — Thomas Allan Maughan, entering highway while unsafe, $30, licence suspended.

Edward Donald Davis, Cedar, unlicensed car, $20; displaying plates of another vehicle, $20.

LADYSMITH — Donald B. Graham, Duncan, speeding, $10.

Honest Victorian Keeps Licence

NANAIMO — The honesty of Victoria driver Patrick Wayne Giddingham saved him from a licence suspension Friday.

He pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to making a left turn while unsafe.

TRUCK SWERVED — Magistrate Lionel Beever-Potts was told the turn, off Highway 19 onto Northfield Road early yesterday, caused a truck to swerve, thereby losing part of its load of empty milk bottles.

FINED $22.50 — Giddingham was fined $22.50 but the magistrate congratulated the driver for reporting the incident to police at once.

This honesty, said the magistrate, "disposes me to treat you with leniency . . . there will be no suspension of your licence."

Around The Island

PORT ALBERNI — A sharp rise in the number of reportable motor vehicle accidents was noted in the July report from Sgt. R. Harding, in charge of the local RCMP detachment. Accidents last month numbered 16 compared to nine the previous month and eight in July last year.

In each of the months two persons were injured. Prosecutions were down to 24 compared with 26 in the same month last year.

NANAIMO — The tourist bureau says 2,782 persons signed the register in July. This exceeds the total for last year by 32, and bureau officials estimate at least as many visitors called at the office without signing. In addition to the usual quota of visitors from all parts of Canada and the U.S., there were registrations from France, Belgium, England and Australia.

NANAIMO — Summer training camp of the sea cadets, HMCS Quadra on Comox Spit, will be open to the public Sunday.

Starting at 8 a.m., cutters will ply between the camp and the Comox jetty.

The public is invited to visit the training area but is warned no meals can be obtained there.

NANAIMO — Principal J. B. Litch announced Friday scholarship awards valued at $250 to three Nanaimo Senior High School students.

Betty Clark of Acacia Avenue scored the highest marks in Mathematics 30 in B.C. with a 98-per-cent average, which gave her a $50 prize, and also won the $100 Dr. R. E. Forster biology award with a percentage of 91.

The 1950 Eliza Barnard PTA prizes for English 40, to the highest scoring boy and girl student in that course, went to Margaret Johnstone with 85 per cent and Carlos Johansen with 85.5 per cent.

PARKEVILLE — Close to 800 tourists signed the visitors' book at Parksville tourist bureau in July and a great many more who called in for information did not stop to sign.

Most seemed to be from California, other western states and B.C. but some came from such widely separated places as Peru, Rhodesia, England, France, Hawaii and the West Indies.

NANAIMO — Damage of $75 was caused to the car of Mrs. Andy Mahle, George Street, by a hit-and-run driver who struck her car while it was parked in front of her house.

DUNCAN — The Handen farm at Cowichan Station will be the scene of the Cowichan Jersey Cattle Club's annual field day and picnic today, starting at 10:30 a.m.

The Scott & Peden cup will be presented to the owner of the cow with the highest butterfat content on Vancouver Island by this year's Dairy Princess Clara Taylor of Saanichton.

New Pump Little Late

NANAIMO — The Northfield water district's new pump, which was to have been in operation Wednesday, still is being installed.

It now is expected to commence its trial run Monday.

The pump is intended to steady the level of the water in Northfield's 22,000-gallon water tank and maintain pressure throughout the district.

Port Wardens

Johnson Heads Large District

PORT ALBERNI — Capt. William Johnson, harbor master and government marine surveyor here, has been appointed port warden for a Vancouver Island district set up recently by the federal government, on recommendation of Transport Minister Balcer.

The central Vancouver Island port wardens district consists of all ports on the coast of Vancouver Island south of a line joining Estevan Point lighthouse on the west coast and Hickey Light on the east coast, and north of a line joining Pachena Point on the west coast and Qualicum Beach on the east coast, including all islands adjacent to the coast except Texada Island and the islands to the south of it.

Unemployed Total Down in Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — There are 347 men and women on government insurance in this area compared to 610 at the same period last year.

The local UIC office says 440 men and 209 women were listed as unemployed applicants at the end of July, compared to 637 men and 227 women at July 31 last year.

Demand for unskilled workers is up slightly over the previous year due to longer holiday periods. The supply of skilled workers is small and there are shortages in several skilled categories.

Port for Ghana

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Yugoslavia will build a naval port at Sekondi under an agreement signed Tuesday by the government of Ghana and a Yugoslav construction company. It was announced yesterday. The port is to be completed in six years.

'Quick Action Will Save Green Space'

Victoria should immediately dedicate its Elk-Beaver Lake property for public park use as a safeguard from encroachment by highway planners, Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said last night.

Injured

Joan Frost, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thom, 3046 Jackson, was in critical condition in a Seattle hospital Friday after a head-on collision near Renton. The couple were headed for Victoria at the time of the crash. The bride graduated from Victoria High School in 1958.

Sweeps Drive Speeds

Operation Sweepstakes gathered momentum this week with the total number of signatures from the Greater Victoria area on petitions to legalize the sweeps in Canada reaching 1,500.

H. P. Wilson of 631 Harbinger said yesterday there are now 90 canvassers in the area. Inquiries are coming in from up-Island.

The campaign is about two weeks old. The petitions circulating in Alberta and B.C. will be presented to the national government at the next sitting of Parliament, Mr. Wilson said. Prospective canvassers and signers are asked to phone EV 5-1175.

Elworthy Raps Report

Fireboat Critics Doused

Harold Elworthy, president of Island Tug and Barge Ltd., which maintains the Island Comet fireboat available to attack fire at any time, yesterday sent this photograph to Mayor R. B. Wilson at city hall.—(George Simpson photo.)

He said dedication of city-owned property fringing the two Saanich lakes is "long overdue" and immediate action on the part of city council would strengthen the hand of local authorities in case of a show-down battle.

MAN NO INKING

Saanich isn't prepared to accept any route for the proposed new Patricia Bay Highway which will encroach on recreation areas, but so far had no inking of government plans, said Reeve Murphy.

"We haven't been consulted," the reeve said.

If the B.C. highways department tries attempts to force the city to give up part of the recreation area to make way for the new highway there would be a "great public outcry," said Reeve Murphy.

PROJECT START

He said the nine-hole golf course which Saanich plans to develop on 80 acres owned by the city at Beaver Lake is to be the start of a large joint recreation project.

The city is to lease the property to Saanich for $1 a year under an agreement that would see all profits poured back in further joint developments of the recreation area to serve all Greater Victoria.

SPACE PURCHASE

Reeve Murphy also noted the B.C. government is already spending "hundreds of thousands of dollars" on purchase of green space flanking Trans-Canada Highway between Goldstream and the entrance to the city.

"Yet, if the reports are true, the same government is apparently prepared to sacrifice existing green space at Elk-Beaver Lake to the interests of its own highways department," he said.

ANOTHER HAZARD

The folly of creating another hazard like the one already existing at Elk Lake where the highway runs close to bathing beaches, must be opposed "by every reasonable person in Greater Victoria," said Reeve Murphy.

Earlier Ald. Millard Mooney, chairman of city parks committee and a doughty fighter for the development of Elk-Beaver Lake as a recreational area, said he had come across "disturbing reports" the highways department tentative draft of Patricia Bay Highway relocation would slice off some of the Beaver Lake wooded area.

Jumbo-Sized Surprise

Did you ever look out in the back yard in the morning and see an elephant? Irving Doud, 2255 James White Boulevard, Sidney, got the shock of his life Friday when it happened to him. The 11,000 pounds of muscle and meat was lying content-

Show on Mall Braves Rain

Several hundred Victorians yesterday braved early afternoon downpours to watch an international show at the Broad Street centennial mall.

And a capacity crowd turned up for last night's performance of the centennial pageant, The Victoria Story. Pre-pageant entertainment carried on the mall show's international theme, with a couple of the same acts.

LAST CHANCE

Tonight will probably be the last chance for Victorians to see the pageant—unless they had tickets for Thursday night's rained-out show.

A special showing will be presented to Thursday's patrons Sunday night.

An official last night said there will probably be no additional tickets sold for the Sunday night performance because there is already Thursday's capacity crowd to accommodate, and because officials believe Sabbath observance laws might make additional ticket sales illegal.

Entertainment at the Broad Street mall from 2 to 5 p.m.

Today will be two hours by the Kitsilano Showboat, Vancouver, followed by an hour of Summer Showcase, now being presented at Club Sirocco.

A new bronze bust of Queen Elizabeth will be unveiled at Beacon Hill Park Sunday, at 3 p.m. The bust by Arthur Price of Ottawa, a nationally known sculptor, is worked one by Peggy Walton Packard of Victoria which was damaged by vandals.

SINGING MISS

Highlight of yesterday's mall and pre-pageant shows was a group of traditional Japanese dancers from Vancouver. Miss Victoria, Synnove Pettersen, sang at both afternoon and night events.

Ukrainian dancers, Danish can-can, German songs by Mrs. Gretchen Adam, accordion stylings by Al Denoni and a judo exhibition by Lanky Mooney rounded out the mall show. The German-language Victoria Harmonie Choir sang, and the Sons of Norway danced before the pageant.

Street Now Place

The south end of Bank Street, separated from the rest of the street by Norfolk House School, will be renamed Laurentian Place.

This was decided yesterday by city public works committee following a petition from the six residents of the short street who claimed nobody could find their end.

Laurentian Place was one of the names suggested by residents. It was also approved by the city post office.

Sought by Police

Mystery Sniper Misses Woman

A mystery sniper who narrowly missed shooting a James Bay housewife with a rifle bullet late Thursday is being sought by city police.

The .22 calibre long rifle bullet that crashed through the kitchen window where only seconds before Mrs. Leonard Chaplin was washing supper dishes apparently was fired from close range.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin, caretakers at the Optimist Building, 106 Superior, called police after the bullet crashed through the window and bounced off a brick wall in the kitchen of the building at 7 p.m. Thursday night.

JUST MOVED

Mrs. Chaplin said she had been standing in front of the window for some time and had just moved away when she heard the glass shatter and a "rattling" noise (probably the spent bullet falling to the floor).

Her husband said his wife would have been hit in the throat if she had not moved.

OVERLOOKS STREET

The window overlooks Kingston Street and an oil company plant. Beyond that is the entrance of the Inner Harbor.

Mr. Chaplin said he doubted if the shot had been fired by someone on the Esquimalt side of the harbor because of the velocity of the bullet when it entered the room.

To Williams Lake

Flying Priest Transferred

By SUSIE McCONNELL BIRD

TOFINO—Rev. Father Thomas Lobsinger, the flying priest of the west coast of Vancouver Island, is leaving this area to become assistant principal of the Williams Lake residential school.

His transfer has been announced by Very Rev. Father Gerald Cousineau, Oblate mission leader in B.C., who is paying an unofficial visit to several of the Oblate priests on the Island.

Father Lobsinger will be succeeded by Rev. Father Edward Egan, also a licensed pilot.

STILL IN CHARGE

It was also announced that Rev. Father A. Nugman will remain in charge of Christie's residential school at Kakawia.

Father Lobsinger graduated in 1954 from the Oblates of Mary Immaculate seminary in Ottawa and came here to cover the Oblate missions of Opaton, Hot Springs Cove, Ahnaut, and other centres and Christie's school.

For some years, he had to travel to the missions by boat, an expensive process. In 1950, the Stinson float plane of the late Dr. Wallace Flynn of Seattle was donated to the mission district by his widow.

The flynn's often had visited the area and had bought property on Centre Island in Esquimalt Inlet, near one of the missions.

TRICKY COAST

Father Lobsinger will not leave for Williams Lake until Christmas, so his successor can learn the tricky coast well enough to fly the most dangerous journeys.

The visiting provincial leader is accompanied by Rev. J. Kelly, Oblate vicar-general, and Monsignor J. Bradley, superintendent of Island Indian Catholic missions.

Twin Explosions Start Salmon Farming Plan

Twin explosions churned the placid waters of Horne Lake late yesterday, marking the start of a $2,000,000 salmon farming experiment.

Five hundred pounds of explosive were used to blow out rock plugs, letting tons of water surge into the first stage of the tunnel linking Horne Lake with Big Qualicum River.

GATES OPENED

When flow gates are partially opened early next week the fish biologists' dream of turning Big Qualicum into the world's first temperature and flow controlled salmon spawning river will be reality.

The experts hope it will see the Pacific salmon fishery built up to a level known even in the "old days" of fishermen's reminiscences.

Charles Clay, chief engineer on the project, told the Colonist last night the double blast triggered at 6:30 p.m. was "pretty spectacular."

END OF WORK

For tunnel diggers and construction men it was the end of many months of arduous work.

Everything went off according to plan when the tunnel plugs, one 75 feet below lake level and the other 25 feet below, were blown out.

Flood gates installed by workmen operating on double shifts over the last week to complete the tunnel were closed beforehand. The gates will be gradually opened over a period of several days next week, officials said.

SMALL FRESHET

No sudden surge of water down the river is expected, but a small fresher will build up as the river flow is increased from its present 80 cubic feet per second to 1,000 cubic feet a second.

Authorities say the unseasonal fresher will not harm coho fry which now fill the river.

Barber Quits To Serve 70-Hour Week

day in 1949 a 39-year-old Sarnia, Ont., barber, C. Bert Carr, was taking the apron from his chair at the start of the day when he suddenly threw it to the floor, walked to the phone and called his wife.

"Honey, how would you feel if I decided to quit barbering and become a minister?" he asked.

"It's no surprise," his wife replied. "I've been expecting you to say something like this for a long time."

Today he is Rev. Bert Carr, pastor of the joint Evangelical United Brethren church of Calgary in this community a few miles northwest of Kitchener and of Zion in nearby Florida.

He has exchanged the 40-hour week of the barber for the 70-hour week of the minister, becoming pastor to about 250 adults and children in the two-point charge.

And he has learned that the minister's life is something like the doctor's. "We're always on call. The well-being of the people in my churches must come first."

Mr. Carr's interest in religion stems from his youth when, as a Roman Catholic, he decided to become a priest and entered St. Mary's College, Blairs, Aberdeen, Scotland.

A year and a half later he "rebelled against the discipline" and quit.

He moved to Canada, married and settled down to his life as a barber. One day in April, 1938, he went with his sister to hear an evangelist at a small church in London, Ont.

"Someone had been praying for me for I had no intention of going to London to be saved," he recalls. "But after the invitation from the evangelist, I felt that I either had to go to the altar or walk out of the church."

He went to the altar. Afterwards he became an active member of Temple Baptist Church in Sarnia.

When his decision was finally made, things moved quickly. He found difficulties in entering the Baptist ministry at his age. But one Sunday he preached at an Evangelical United Brethren Church in Dushwood, Ont., his wife's hometown, and was encouraged to proceed with his plans.

He took a four-year correspondence course and was assigned to a church at Port Elgin, Ont.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Sex is the major problem of turbulence in teenage. "I wonder if my parents ever were young," a teenage girl told me. "They just don't seem to understand. Sometimes I go almost crazy, I want to make love so much." The problem is aggravated by heavy petting.

Children who have had a wholesome life and fairly adequate sex education tend to have a more mature and healthy sex life later. If parents are not frank and wholehearted in their treatment of the subject of sex and procreation, then the sex experience of a child will be extremely painful.

Sex becomes a problem for the most part in an inadequate personality structure. Children from a poor home background almost invariably reflect it in interpersonal relationships and sexual behavior.

Frequent Troubles

Exhibitionism, masturbation, and homosexuality are problems more frequently encountered than most people suspect. The capacity for true love and marriage is often blocked.

Many who come to me fear they have sinned beyond forgiveness. The guilty feelings are often so deep it is most difficult to bring the wretched person from self-flagellation into self-respect.

Too often the attitude of both parent and church has been harsh and condemning. A bad job has been done by the church in sex education of its youth, its attitude of being merely negative, and discussion of sex in church groups tabu.

Utter Self-Giving

To an animal sexual intercourse is merely gratification of desire, to the human being it is an inter-twining of two total lives and must involve responsibility to be honest.

The sexual act expresses a complete self-giving and commitment of life to another so they "become one flesh," therefore marriage is the only social structure in which the sex act can be honestly performed. Anything else is bound to result in guilt and self-disgust.

The statement that traditional morality has been rejected and it is normal to have sex relations outside marriage is

Mennonites Told:

Stress Pacifist Beliefs

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—A Mennonite missionary Thursday night urged delegates at a world conference of Mennonites here to stress the faith's pacifist beliefs and speak out against nuclear arms.

Rev. Nelson Litwiler, stationed at Elkhart, Ind., attacked the "self-styled realists"—generals, legislators and nuclear scientists—who spent 60 per cent of the United States budget on arms while admitting there was no adequate defence to nuclear attack. He suggested if one side renounced "the economically disastrous and ethically condemnable armaments race," the other side might do the same.

The Christian church has failed in its responsibility, he said, in not combatting a situation where nations are "preparing to obliterate 50,000,000 people in retaliation for 50,000,000."

Mr. Litwiler spoke to an overflow crowd in Kitchener Auditorium. Some 7,000 Mennonites have converged from Europe and North America on this city 75 miles west of Toronto.

The Mennonite church claims some 212,000 members—about 53,000 in Canada—in 12 branches of the main faith.

Zoo Operator Fights to Save Reptile Parcel

By KLAUS MUENTER
DUNCAN—A shipment of rare lizards, desert snakes and iguanas from Dutch Guiana and Africa to the Duncan reptile zoo may be destroyed by post office headquarters in Ottawa.

Zoo owner Jim Oyen has been advised by a Victoria post office official that the shipment from Holland by airmail is against regulations.

The reptiles have been sent to Ottawa with a recommendation from Victoria that they be destroyed.

WENT TO APPEAL

Mr. Oyen disclosed yesterday he was advised Thursday of the ruling and went to Victoria post office to appeal.

He said: "If they go ahead in Ottawa and kill the reptiles which are not even my property yet but still belong to the Dutch importer in Holland, the postmaster-general will have to face unpleasant consequences."

SEND EXPEDITIONS

The angry zoo operator added he had advised Ottawa officials of this, adding that, if the postmaster-general is willing to send expeditions to the jungles of South America and Africa to replace these rare specimens, not obtainable from any dealer, he can go ahead and kill the contents of the unlawful package.

CAUGHT BY SOCIETY

Mr. Oyen said the reptiles were caught by a world-wide international society, Lacerta, of which he is a member.

"After these animals travelled around the globe through several countries without any difficulty," he said, "their final delivery across the counter of the Victoria post office failed through the officiousness of one employee."

B-47 Jet Crashes

PEASE AIR BASE, N.H. (AP) — A B-47 jet bomber crashed on takeoff from Pease Air Force Base Friday night. There were no survivors.

wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area and the plane's burning fuel transformed the area into an inferno.

Germ Warfare Kills Scientist

LONDON (AP)—The disease that killed a British germ warfare research scientist was identified Friday night as pneumonic plague—the dread Black Death which ravaged Europe in the middle ages.

Precautions were taken to guard against its spread across England after the war office announced the result of an autopsy on 44-year-old George A. Bacon, research officer at Britain's principal germ warfare establishment.

About 40 persons known to have had recent contact with Bacon were kept under rigid surveillance and dosed with antibiotic drugs.

Bacon was reported working on pneumonic and bubonic plague at the Microbiological Research Establishment at Porton Down, situated in an isolated area of Salisbury Plain.

Stricken last Sunday, he died in hospital Wednesday.

Experiments in lethal diseases have been going on at Porton Down for 17 years. Techniques have been worked out for combating hundreds of killer infections. A few ounces of some of the germs under experiment would be enough to wipe out whole populations.

Although the fall resulted in great disturbances in the air waves with the shock felt thousands of miles away, no crater was ever discovered.

Harold Sanders, both 18, and Gary John Rowley, 17, had found the boxes of worms stacked on a golf course.

A local worm-picking magazine, whose crews had picked the slimy creatures, was able to identify them as his catch.

Magistrate Fred Barrett decided on stiff lectures for the three young worm thieves and suspended sentence for the trio.

Hula Greet Canadians

SEATTLE (AP)—The Canadian Navy received a shaky welcome Friday at Seattle's annual week-long SeaFair. The shakers were provided by a double line of hula dancers in the rain who met HMC's Regency and HMCS Fraser.

Seattle princesses hurried hula-randy, that is, SeaFair Queen Gail Reid planted hula-real ones—on Capt. Victor Browne and the ship-ers of both ships.

Prisoners May Be Force-Fed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fifty-four Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, on a hunger strike in the federal prison at Agassiz in the Fraser Valley, will be force-fed if they fail to feed themselves, prison authorities said Friday.

B.C. Penitentiary Warden T. W. Hall and assistant warden G. S. Merritt said that such action will not necessarily be taken in the immediate future, however.

"It will have to be done eventually," said Mr. Merritt, "but they can last a long time yet on water—Gandhi lasted 72 days."

11-DAY STRIKE

The Doukhobors have been on their hunger strike for 11 days.

Warden Hall said hunger strikes by the Freedomites are not new. Several times in the past they had to be force-fed.

"I believe their longest hunger strike lasted 30 days," he said.

The prisoners, serving various terms for terrorist activities in the Kootenays, are checked daily by a doctor, and Mr. Hall said Friday all still are in good condition physically.

Comet's Blow Red Solution

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian scientists believe they have detected the first known case of a comet from outer space striking the earth.

The Soviet claim, now widely supported but still not proved beyond doubt, was related Friday by Dominion astronomer Dr. C. S. Beals following an 18-day visit to Russia.

LONG RAFFLED

If the comet theory is correct, it will explain a natural phenomenon that has baffled the world's scientists for more than half a century.

The mystery dates back to 1908 when Tunguska, in a remote part of central Siberia, was bombarded by what until recently was considered one of the only two recorded major meteorite falls in history. The other occurred in 1947 in eastern Siberia.

Although the fall resulted in great disturbances in the air waves with the shock felt thousands of miles away, no crater was ever discovered.

Harold Sanders, both 18, and Gary John Rowley, 17, had found the boxes of worms stacked on a golf course.

John D Picks Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office said Friday that changes in the federal cabinet will be announced next Thursday.

The announcement will be made at noon, the office spokesman informed the parliamentary press gallery.

There was no word as to the number of appointments to be made. Five ministers were defeated in the June 18 general election.

SEND RESIGNATION

Thursday, Solicitor-General Browne—the last of the five defeated ministers to leave office—sent in his resignation.

Earlier, Mines Minister Flynn, State Secretary Dorion, Postmaster-General William Hamilton and Works Minister Walker resigned and their portfolios were taken over by other ministers on an acting basis.

Drawing up a cabinet list is a complicated process for any prime minister. Custom, rather than law, requires every province to be represented and recognition given to language and religious groups.

MARTINEAU IN?

The consensus has been that Paul Martineau, 41, Pontiac-Témiscamingue, Deputy Speaker in the last Parliament and earlier one of Mr. Diefenbaker's parliamentary secretaries, will be taken into the cabinet.

Considered top candidate for the speakership of the New House has been Marcel Lambert, 43, Edmonton West, parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Nowlan and a bilingual Rhodes scholar.

QUEBEC MEMBERS

In addition to Mr. Martineau, Quebec members prominently mentioned as possible cabinet appointees are: The Honourable Richard, 53, St. Hyacinthe-Bagot; Georges Valade, 40, Montreal; St. Marie; and Roland English, 53, Gaspé.

If Mr. Diefenbaker wants at least one Quebec minister to be of English parentage, like former postmaster-general Hamilton, he has only one candidate—34-year-old Howard Graffley, Brum-Massachusetts.

SIMILAR SITUATION

A similar situation exists in the case of the Newfoundland cabinet vacancy. Only one Conservative was elected in the island province—James McGrath, 38, St. John's East, first elected to the Commons in 1957.

No change in cabinet representation for the Maritime provinces and Western Canada is expected unless some of the present ministers retire.

NEAR RETIREMENT

Revenue Minister Nowlan from Nova Scotia, 64 this month, Veterans Minister Churchill from Manitoba, 64 in November, and External Affairs Minister Green from British Columbia, 67 in November, are regarded as nearing retirement.

But their elevation to the Senate—there are vacancies there for Nova Scotia and Manitoba but not for B.C.—or appointment to some post outside of Parliament would mean by-elections would have to be held.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress Friday unveiled a broad automation-era program.

In it, the central voice of 1,070,000 organized workers in Canada advocated that:

Governments at all levels must meet the need for grants-in-aid, loans, scholarships and finances for training workers displaced by technological change.

BASIC PROGRAMS

Sound basic education programs must be offered to help workers adapt themselves to changing skill requirements.

Aid must be provided to help workers and their families who are forced to move to new jobs because of changes in their industry.

At the same time, the CLC said its affiliated unions should press for higher wages of shorter hours—or both—as mechanization and automation increase productivity.

The congress executive council in other decisions, made public in a series of statements issued by CLC president Claude Jodoin, urged that:

1. A national contributory pension plan be introduced to supplement present old-age pensions.

2. The government make outright grants—not loans—to the unemployment insurance fund to maintain its ability to meet claims. The fund stood at $28,000,000 at June 30, with an emergency $25,000,000 loan ready to bolster it if necessary.

CBC GRANTS

3. The publicly-owned CBC be strengthened by five-year parliamentary grants—not annual grants as at present—so that long-term planning can be made.

4. Tighter control be imposed on private radio and television stations—including rules governing Canadian content and heavy commercialism during peak hours.

WAGE INCREASE

5. Postal workers be granted the wage increase deferred by the government's austerity program and also be given the right to bargain collectively on such issues as holidays, overtime pay, and check-off of dues.

'Smallpox' Negative

NEW YORK (AP)—A suspected case of smallpox threw a scare into medical circles here Friday, before several hours of tests showed the illness to be virus ailment resembling chicken pox.

Red Atheism 'An Ordeal'

French School In B.C.?

OTTAWA (CP)—The general secretary of the Association of French Catholic School Commissioners, Noel Bazinet, hinted Friday that a French-language secondary school may be built soon in British Columbia.

He also announced plans to build a French-language teachers' college in Alberta.

Returning from a 16-day tour of the two western provinces, Mr. Bazinet said in an interview he did not find any lack of good-will among school authorities.

Local Warship Sabotaged?

Possibility of sabotage aboard an RCN Pacific Command destroyer escort is being investigated by RCMP, the Colonist learned yesterday.

HMS Margate has been undergoing repairs for two weeks in HMC Dockyard after a breakdown of one of her main engines.

The navy last night confirmed a defect had been found in a gear casing. An official statement said damage to the ship's engines was limited to one gear pinion.

There is a possibility the breakdown was not due to an equipment failure within the gear casing; therefore, the navy said, RCMP have been asked to conduct a routine investigation.

Margate is scheduled to return to service next week after repairs to the gear train of one main engine. No further official statements are expected until the RCMP has completed its probe.
